AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, St. Louis, Aug. 21.—The Red Sox opened their Western campaign here this afternoon. They arrived after a long but not unpleasant ride from New York and they got out to the park early in order to work the stiffness out of their systems.

Every man jack of them declared they were out for the pennant and their actions backed up their words. They were as lively as crickets in practice, and they said they confidently expected to win more games than they lose in this town.

"Of course Stahl's absence will be felt," said Manager Lake, "but fortunately we have a good first baseman in Harry Wolter. What I regret more than anything is that Wolter is a left-handed batter, while Jake is a right-hander. We have so many left-handers as it is that they rather overbalance things. Wagner and Carrigan are our only regular right-handed batters now that Jake is away. I expect he will join us in Chicago."

Claude Rossman, the former Tiger, appeared in a St. Louis uniform to-day and cavorted around first base for the Browns. Jones, the St. Louis first sacker, who was traded for Rossman, has already reported to Jennings.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Aug. 21.—With a double-header on tap between the Cubs and Doves there was a good sized crowd surrounding the pasture this afternoon when the players deployed for the opening battle.

The Champions, of course, counted on a double win, but Manager Chance realized that it was not an easy thing to win twice in one day from even a tailend team.

Red White, the only Dove pitcher that has won a game from the Chicago crowd this season, was selected by Manager Smith to pitch one of the games for his team. Chance had Overall, Reulbach and plenty of others to chose from.

"I think we will tighten up on Pittsburg before long," declared Chance. "We are going nicely now and I think I see signs of wobbly work among the Pirates."

It was a grand day for baseball. The conditions were perfect for players and spectators.

HUGH M'INTOSH, FIGHT PROMOTER IS COMING HERE

TOMMY BURNS MATCHED WITH SAM LANGFORD

Hugh D. McIntosh, the Australian fight promoter, will be in Boston next Tuesday and will attend the opening entertainment at the Armory Athletic Club on that night.

This will be Mr. McIntosh's first visit to Boston and he comes to confer with Joe Woodman in regard to a date for a match between Sam Langford and Tommy Burns, which has already been arranged.

Woodman returned from New York today, after closing the match between Burns and Langford, all the details having been completed except fixing the date.

The former world's champion and Langford will fight either in England or Australia, whichever place seems best to Mr. McIntosh. The distance is twenty rounds and the new meet at catch weights.

While in Boston Mr. McIntosh will make his final announcement as to the amount he will bid for the Jeffries-Johnson fight. This, according to Mr. Woodman, will be $62,500, and McIntosh declares he stands ready to deposit $30,000 the moment some signs of life are shown by Jeff and Johnson.

In making his bid, McIntosh will reserve the right to stage the bout either in America, England or Australia.

The bout between Langford and Burns will attract a great deal of interest among followers of the flatte as it will give them a line of the possible outcome of a fight between Langford and Johnson, which is bound to come sooner or later.

Langford's next ring engagement after the Ketchel bout, which Woodman says will be pulled off the first week in September, will be on September 22, when the Boston negro meets Mike Sheck in Columbus, Ohio, in a six-round bout.

AUTOS RACED FOR HUGE $5,000 CUP; RECORDS MAY GO

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—the fifteen-mile free-for-all handicap was the first event of the closing program of the inaugural automobile meet on th enew $400,000 Indianapolis speedway.

Twenty-two thousand people gathered to watch the exciting getaway of this event. The crowd to-day was the biggest of the meet and persons began pouring into the stand long before the time for the first event.

The race promising the most excitement was the last event, the 200-mile contest for the Indianapolis motor speedway cup, said to be the most valuable trophy ever offered in an automobile race.

A splendid field of contenders gathered for this event. The cup is 8 ½ feet high and is said to be worth $5,000. It weighs 500 pounds.

The program for to-day is:

Fifteen mile race for all handicap.

Ten miles for the amateur championship of America.

Twenty-five mile free-for-all. five mile consolation open to all cars that have not won a race this meet.

SUMMARY.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, Cleveland, Aug. 21.—The Naps thought it about time to put an end to the Athletics' winning streak, and they went into the game to-day full of determination. Both Young and Joss warmed up for the locals, and it was a sure thing that the Mackmen would have no picnic with the Nap boxmen.

Connie Mack had Bender and Plank, his old reliables, groomed up, and Krause, his new star, also warmed up with the veterans. Connie told the reporters that he was growing more confident every day that the Athletics would win the pennant. "The only thing I worry about now is possible injuries to some of my men," he said.

It was a fine day for the game and a large crowd turned out to see the fast Philadelphians, who are very popular in this city.

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, Aug. 21.—"Nothing can stop us now," declared Jennings, when he came out of the clubhouse before the game with the Senators this afternoon. The Tiger leader was reminded that his team was now playing the tailenders while the Athletics and Red Sox were up against supposedly stronger teams.

"That makes no difference," answered Jennings. "I know what my team can do and all the other fellows look alike to us from now on. We are not sure of ourselves except for McIntyre are in the best possible shape for a hard finish."

The Senators have been giving the Tigers some hard battles and they said they were in the race to make trouble for everybody. The day was fine, and there was a large crowd out. The fickle Detroit fans have taken heart again.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK WHITE MT. EXPRESS

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Aug. 21.—Two trainmen were hurt to-day, when the White Mountain Express on the Boston & Maine ran into an open switch in the Central Vermont yards here and collided with an engine attached to a Central Vermont freight train.

No passenger was seriously hurt, although several were roughly shaken up. The switch was left open in an attempt to wreck the train.

Firemen J. G. Hawkins, on one of the two locomotives drawing the train received two broken ribs, while Brakeman I. Austin, who was riding on one of the locomotives, suffered from a badly crushed hand. Hawkins lives in Monchester, N. H., and Austin in Springfield, Mass.

This is the second time within a week that a train has run through this switch, and railroad officials have started a rigid investigation.

The White Mountain Express was delayed two hours while new locomotives were procured, as both its engines had their fronts badly damaged. The freight engine also was damaged and one freight car was demolished.

SELL GREAT WESTERN TO J. P. MORGAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Chicago Great Western Railroad was purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co., in Chicago to-day under foreclosure proceedings.

The transaction was a matter of form, as the firm announced several weeks ago it would make the transaction. This company went into the hands of a receiver on failure to pay interest on its bonds following the 1907 panic and it is generally understood that banking facilities were withdrawn from the company because of the crusade carried on by President A. B. Stickney, in connection with Harvard Pilgrim, Boston Wall Street methods.

The reorganization plan announced by Morgan & Co., provides for an assessment of $15 a share on the common stock and on the preferred B stock. New common and preferred stock will be issued for this. The old company now has outstanding common stock amounting to $44,465,1950; preferred B stock of $24,415,300, and preferred A stock of $11,372,400. There is also outstanding $28,127,000 of four per cent. debentures.

S. M. Felton, who was president of the Chicago & Alton under Harriman's management, will be made president. This road was for years a disturbing element, as it refused to make pool agreements with the other railroads and was known as a heavy rate-cutter.

CARUSO'S RIVAL HERE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Signor Carasa, the rival of Henri Caruso for the operatic favor of America, arrived here to-day on board the steamship La Lorraine with other singers who will take part in Oscar Hammerstein's season of "educational" opera at the Manhatan Opera House, beginning August 30.

WIFE FIGHTS DECREE RYAN AGENT WON

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Catherine Gilhooly, wife of Michael Gilhooly, confidential agent of Thomas F. Ryan, declared to-day that she would have reopened the case secured by her husband and that a priest who was named in the suit was innocent and she believed would come forward to defend her reputation.

Mrs. Gilhooly asserted that at the secret hearings before the referee who recommended granting of the divorce decree she had not known what was going on and that she had never been asked to defend herself and that two of the witnesses against her had committed perjury.

"The news that an interlocutory decree had been granted to my husband," said Mrs. Gilhooly, "was the greatest surprise to me. The worst part is that the Ryan office influenced the courts in my husband's favor. I see now that I was imposed upon.

"The mention of this priest in the case is a great injury to him and to me. There was absolutely nothing improper in our pastor-friendly relationship. The mention of the priest's name is something my husband would never have done of his own accord.

"I was married to Michael Gilhooly fourteen years ago. At that time my husband was Mr. Ryan's coachman. Michael was industrious and Mr. Ryan soon gave him a position in the Morton Trust Company. Then he took him on his trips around the country and to Europe. I objected to these trips and asked Mr. Ryan to leave my husband at home more."

CABINET MEETING IN BEVERLY ON TRUSTS

BEVERLY, Aug. 21.—That Beverly is the real capital of the United States was made plain to-day when a cabinet meeting was held with Secretary McVeagh, Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary Meyer in conference with President Taft.

Attorney-General Wickersham came to discuss the reorganization of the interstate commerce laws and amendments to the anti-trust laws, placing it up to President Taft to decide what is a good trust. Secretary McVeagh came to discuss the customs court and a tariff board.

It is the aim of the President to recommend to Congress the extension of powers under the inter-state commerce act, relieving the inter-state commerce commission of its power as an executive or judicial body and enlarging its authorities as to the investigation of complaints.

Investigations now being conducted look to the following:

Supervision of stock and bonds issued by railroads; exclusion of common carriers from business other than of transportation; the making of the commodities clause constitutional; extension of the power of physical valuation; authority to classify merchandise for transportation and to approve certain mutual traffic agreements; prevention of election of same directors for two competing lines of railroads; making it unlawful for a railroad to purchase or hold stock in a competing line.

Unless the investigation now on shows Mr. Taft that railroad abuses cannot be remedied by law, this topic will be the subject of a vigorous message to Congress.

The first official dinner given by President Taft since the arrival at Burgess Point takes places to-night. The three members of his cabinet will remain for the dinner and, so far as known, will be the only guests.

Another visitor expected at Burgess Point to-day is Charles R. Crane, the newly-appointed Minister to China. He comes to get President Taft's ideas as to the attitude of Washington toward the court at Pekin. The President, on account of his experiences in the Far East, is better qualified to deal personally with Oriental diplomacy than his predecessors.

SERGT. NAGLE A WAR VICTIM

First Sergeant John J. Nagle of the hospital corps, who was taken ill last Sunday while on duty in the "Blue" Army of defence in the war game, died in the Boston City Hospital to-day of peritonitis and intestinal ulcers.

Heroic effort was made to save Sergeant Nagle. He was taken ill at 7 o'clock last Sunday night at Bridgewater. Captain George Osgood, surgeon of the corps, ordered a hospital ambulance, which brought the sick man to the City Hospital at record speed, flying the hospital flag en route so warn country constables and gatekeepers of speed traps not to interfere. They reached the hospital at 9:40, and an operation was performed, which was unavailing, however.

Sergeant Nagle was forty-one years old and lived at No. 725 East Third street, South Boston. He leaves a wife and children, Velma and Raymond. He was employed in a carpet house on Eliot street.

BRADLEY BOOMED FOR G. A. R. CHIEF

The members of Dahlgren Post, No. 2, G. A. R., of South Boston, have started a boom for J. Payson Bradley for the office of Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. At a regular meeting of the post it was voted to use all honorable means to secure Comrade Bradley's election at the next national encampment.

SCORCHERS GET QUINCY'S 'GOAT'

Quincy is tired of being a "good thing" for auto scorchers. As a result six autoists were fined $15 in Quincy District Court to-day for overspeeding. They were Ernest Hodgson of Dover, Hector Lynch of Allerton, Albert F. Johnstone, Charles O. Wales, Miss Tena Bolton and Michael W. Quhlan of Boston. Two months ago the Quincy police posted signs asking autoists to drive at reasonable speed and assuring them the would get a "square deal." So they trusted that the motorists would use some consideration on account of this courtesy. But the autoists went faster than ever and made the seven-mile speed limit look foolish. The first of this week Inspector Goodwin and Constable McKay marked out a speed trap and as the result of a few day's watchful work got summonses to the six scorchers mentioned above.

DEBS SPEAKS AT REVERE TO-MORROW

The State Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Socialist Clubs is making arrangements for a grand labor festival, to be held at Oak Island Grove, Revere, to-morrow. The chief feature of the festival will be the address by and reception to America's leading Socialist, Eugene V. Debs. James F. Carey is to preside, and the singing section of the German Arbeiter Turn Verein is to render selections at the meeting at 3 o'clock.

HARRIMAN'S HEALTH RESTORED; RUMORS A STOCK MARKET RUSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—From three separate sources, in no way connected, information was received showing that reports of E. H. Harriman's grave condition were put out for the specific purpose of bringing about a break in the stock market. That having being accomplished, the real facts are now coming to light.

One of the statements was made by an intimate friend and associate of Harriman; another describes the results on another and seemingly identical cases of the treatment he has undergone, the third, emanating from Vienna, gives the actual nature of the disorder affecting him.

Alexander Miller, secretary of the Union Pacific Railroad and many other Harriman companies, and constantly regarded as the founder's right hand man, returned on the Mauretania Discussing Mr. Harriman's health, he said:

"I saw Mr. Harriman a few days before leaving England and he looked better and seemed to feel better than he had in a long time

Fish Caused Trouble.

"It is my judgment that when Mr. Harriman gets here next spring he will show that he has been restored to health. Altering reports of his condition are unwarranted."

The original ailment was ptomaine poisoning caused by eating too many good dishes, or rather, I am told, the wrong kind of fish—bonfinder fish, I understand," added Mr. Miller, with a laugh.

"Then, too, Mr. Harriman was suffered from rheumatism. Well, so do I, and I have taken the baths for it. But because I have rheumatism it does not follow that I am an invalid. I am not at all anxious about Mr. Harriman. He will be here to speak for himself soon."

"Mr. Harriman sailed just before sailing that he was coming home to take the 'after cure.' Just what did he mean by that?"

"The atmosphere and food at Arden are much to be preferred, to any hotel or resort in Europe. Mr. Harriman's physicians had to be trundled about in a roller chair, or washed to his feet are mere inventions."

"Why is former Governor Odell accompanying Harriman on his return to America?"

"I did not see the Governor. He and Harriman are old friends. It is no novelty that they should be together, is it?"

Banker Cured Same Way.

Excitement over E. H. Harriman's condition was recently allayed in Wall Street by the intelligence concerning a well-known financier who had gone through the same ordeal.

Several years ago John T. Waterbury, now President of the Magnetic Metal Company, was in a state of physical collapse, due, as in Harriman's case, to overwork and nervous strain.

He took the cure at Bad Gastein. He was greatly reduced in weight and came from the baths looking more of a wreck than when he entered. His wife was told he could not walk or even stand alone. He had to be helped to the steamship, and when he arrived in New York his friends believed he had but a few days to live.

The doctors, however, reasoned them and talked as they now talk about Harriman. Waterbury rested and ate plain food for a few weeks. His recuperation amazed his family and his luck on Change became strong, and in a short time was at his regular work, looking and feeling like a physical giant. He is to-day one of the strongest men physically in Wall Street.

Harriman Wires Friend.

The 800 cigarets had eliminated from the system every symptom of disease, and he was a new man.

Mr. Waterbury is in Europe at present, but this statement of his condition was given out by his intimate personal friend, who himself knows him for many years.

Taking advantage of the alarm over Harriman, operators attacked the stock market in Wall Street and caused an extensive break, as recognized by the bears.

A private wireless message from Harriman to a banking firm at a point in Maine, read:

"Have had a good breakfast. Never felt better in my life."

The message was passed around the street by telephone among some of the leading interests, and the effect was quite the reverse of that finally induced a rally of a point or more.

Another attack made on the market was met by aggressive buying, with the result that the day closed with prices at the top. Call fight and stocks at about the highest figures, with most of the losses made up.

NORA BAYES' SALARY COMES OUT IN COURT

Some light on theatrical salaries and the services performed by Nora Bayes, the actress, and her husband, Jack Norworth, in "The Follies of 1908," for which Miss Bayes was engaged and featured as the star, came out before Supreme Court Justice Amend in New York on the argument of the application of Florenz Ziegfeld for an injunction restraining the Bayes-Norworth team from appearing in vaudeville or anywhere else except under the management of Ziegfeld. He claims their services for the season.

David Gerber, counsel for Ziegfeld, said that while Miss Bayes and Norworth were engaged jointly they were by far the real attraction and the better performer of the two. "The Follies of 1908" and that Norworth got only $250. This year the two are getting $3500.

William Klein, counsel for the defendants, contended that their engagement was not of the unique and extraordinary character necessary before an injunction could issue. He declared that on many occasions Miss Bayes was so hoarse from previous prostration and that when a physician's certificate to the effect that she could not play was produced Ziegfeld refused to let her husband go on.

Finally Ziegfeld wouldn't let Norworth appear without his wife and recently sent word that he considered the contract broken by the plaintiff. Klein said that Ezra Tangney was engaged in place of Miles Belmont.

"Yes, and at $1,200 a week," said Mr. Gerber.

Mr. Gerber got permission to submit additional affidavits and the Court took the papers.

AUTO ROMANCE HAS ENDING IN DIVORCE COURT

Divorce proceedings have put an end to the auto romance of Walter O. Stiles a chauffeur, who lives at No. 37 Worcester street, and his pretty wife, Annie Rose Short Stiles. Stiles asks for separation on statutory grounds.

Stiles met the girl who became his wife in a romantic manner and they were married in 1905.

For three years they lived happily, apparently, and Mrs. Stiles became the mother of a son. In his libel Mr. Stiles asks for the custody of this child, who is with Mrs. Stiles while the mother is said to be in Bridgeport, Ct.

Some time after the birth of the boy Mrs. Stiles went away from home. Later it became rumored starting that she was in a house in Tufts street. Inquiry in the police department showed that one "Ella Stiles" had been arrested in this house, charged with disorderly conduct. Mr. Stiles claims that the Ella arrested was Mrs. Walter O. Stiles.

ONE DEAD, ONE HURT IN FALL OFF STAGING

One man is dead and another is seriously injured as the result of both falling from a staging on the house at No. 159 Mountain avenue, Malden, at noon to-day.

Frank A. Harding, of No. 15 Rockingham avenue, Malden, was so badly injured he died on the way to the hospital. His companion, Albert D. Boutlet, of Isabella street, Melrose Highlands, is in the Malden Hospital with several broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

The two men were carpenters and were putting a window on the house where they were at work. One of the other fell his footing. He grabbed his companion and they fell together. Harding struck among the rafters of a partially completed piazza and then fell head first upon a brick foundation. Boutlet struck on the rafters, too, but was able to cling to them.

Harding was married and had three children. Boutlet is also married and has two children. He is a former president of the Carpenters' Union of Malden. His sister was drowned while on her vacation recently.

PREPARE FOR PEACH DELUGE

This is the best year for peaches in a generation; that is, peaches of the fruit variety. The feminine brand is as distractingly luscious as ever.

Millions of peaches are expected in. Boston early next week from the tremendous crop which upstate New York is ready to pelt now in New Jersey, Boston and other big peach markets. Already thousands of crates have been coming East from Ohio, Michigan, Colorado and Illinois, but the two Western States alone have been shipping 3,000,000 peaches daily, as well as forty odd carloads of the plums, grapes and other fruit.

The New York crop, richer than ever before, is enough to put a peach jubilee half way around the world. Some are coming out of Rochester and other cities in the peach belt that rival Klondike strikes.

When Willie Hoppner is all in there will be a glorious burning of mortgages. Four acres have been made rich by the giant crop, and abandoned farms have been transformed into promulgated gold mines.

OFFERS $100 FOR $5 FINE

Judith Adams, a fashionably dressed young autoist, who gave his residence to the Metropolitan Park police as Pheonix, N. H., and his occupation as "gentleman of leisure," pulled out a crisp $100 bill to pay a $5 fine for overspeeding, when arraigned in the Malden Police Court today.

Smilingly young Adams, who was accompanied in his powerful machine with a dashing young brunette, dressed in a smart white linen suit and white panama hat, was arraigned in the dock before Judge Fernald.

"I don't know what to plead," Adams told the clerk. "But it sounds like 'not.'"

"Oh! I guess you mean 'nolo,'" replied the clerk.

"You're right; it's nolo that I want to plead," said Adams nonchalantly, as he peeled off the $100 bill from a big roll.

Prohibition Officer Dolan scurried around for ten minutes to find change.

"I'm sorry that I haven't troubled you too much," Adams remarked, apologetically.

Adams says his father is a rubber owner.

COL. DONOVAN TO RETIRE AS NINTH'S HEAD

Colonel William H. Donovan of the Ninth Massachusetts, M. V. M., and commander of the Second Brigade of Boston during the war game, is going to retire to give way to a younger man.

The announcement by Colonel Donovan of the "Fighting Ninth" that he is going to send in his papers and ask for retirement is the principal topic of militia conversation to-day. All discussion is marked with regret, especially among the men of the Ninth, that the daughter-in-law of the officer of the regiment is going to quit the service.

At the Hanover camp last evening Lieutenant-Colonel John J. Sullivan, who has been in command of Colonel Donovan's regiment during the war game, tendered a review to Colonel Donovan. At the close Colonel Donovan stepped in front of the regiment, thanked the officers and men for the compliment and announced that he was about to retire. He added:

"I regret very much to sever my connection with the regiment, but I feel it my duty to turn the command over to some younger man. I have had all the honor I can reasonably expect. I think the Ninth for its part has done well during the manoeuvres. I am proud of you."

TAX RATE FOR 1909 REMAINS OLD FIGURE

The announcement was made at noon to-day in the Board of Assessors of Boston that the tax rate for the year 1909 would be $16.50 per thousand dollars, the same as last year. Property holders who had been looking for a further increase sent up a sigh of relief. It was only after the most strenuous figuring and by suggesting the personal valuation that the assessors were able to keep it down to the present figure.

Of the amount specified for the tax rate is included $1.10 for the county tax, $2.40 for the State tax and $13 for the city tax. Of the latter tax $3.19 is for schools.

The gain in real estate in the city of Boston in the personal tax is $10,180,199, making a grand total of $20,379,260. The total polls assessed are 180,760, which is a gain of 2,194. The total real estate value is $1,002,585,400. The total personal is $255,446,277, making a grand total valuation for the city in personal and real estate of $1,348,041,627.

This is the second largest tax rate in the history of the city. The average tax rate for the year is 1.35 per cent, as compared with 2½ per cent. last year.

BOSTON BROKER IN AUTO CRASH

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Aug. 21.—While trying an automobile which he had thought of buying, Arthur H. Forbush of Boston received injuries which may cause his death. Mr. Forbush is about thirty years old and is said to be connected with the firm of Wright & Hiwell, stock brokers at No. 53 State street, Boston.

He came to Brattleboro to look at a six cylinder machine owned by Jacob G. Ullery of this place. To demonstrate the car Mr. Ullery drove in it to Spofford lake, in Chesterfield, N. H., about ten miles from here, and upon arriving there Mr. Ullery got out of the car to talk with an acquaintance, while Mr. Forbush said he would drive the machine up the road a short distance and turn it around. He pushed the gear shift lever, however, on the board walk and kept on the car and it went over an embankment ten feet high, turning completely down at the edge of the lake, with the back wheels still resting across Forbush's neck and head.

BURDETT REPORT A W. U. VICTORY

Everett W. Burdett, master in the Western Union-American Bell Telephone Litigation, to-day filed his report in the United States Circuit Court, in which he found the American Bell Telephone Company accountable to the Western Union for 20,832 shares of stock in various subsidiary Bell companies and for $2,575,000 cash. The amount of cash claimed by the Western Union was $5,875,000.

The decision as a whole is a victory for the Western Union.

WHITE STAR LINE TO CHANGE PIERS

It is reported that the White Star Line will leave its Charlestown piers and take piers in East Boston upon the completion of the new immigration station at Jeffries Point. Its new piers will be occupied jointly with the Leyland line. The change, while of advantage to East Boston, will involve more or less loss to Charlestown interests.

MAN AND GIRL LOST IN SURF

WILDWOOD, N. J., Aug. 21—Seized with cramps and caught by the strong undercurrent, W. Brooke Lessig, a young attorney of Philadelphia and his cousin Miss Paul, a young society favorite of Swarthmore, Pa., lost their lives while bathing in the surf at the lower end of Wildwood Crest. Friends and relatives helplessly stood by.

Lessig was a son of George Lessig, a millionaire iron and coal mine owner of Pottstown, Pa.

Lessig and Miss Paul ventured out farther than the others, and when they were seen to call for assistance it was thought they were joking for Lessig was a good swimmer.

Several persons were on the board walk and land found that the couple, despite their struggling to reach the beach were slowly drifting further out to sea. Then they belabored for help.

Word was quickly sent to Captain Frank P. Downs of the United States Life Saving crew of Holly Beach. With a crew of four men he worked for hours hoping to recover the bodies, but in vain.

"MANLINESS" TEST IN NEW SCHOLARSHIPS

Harvard University has just received $15,000 from Mrs. James Augustus Rumill of Springfield, in memory of her husband, who received his degree at A. B. in 1859, to establish three scholarships for Southern students, which are to be known as the James A. Rumill scholarships. Properly qualified students in their first year of residence as undergraduates at the outer Harvard from secondary schools in Virginia, South or North Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee or Kentucky, are eligible for the Rumill scholarships each year. The terms of the gift specify that consideration is to be given to the qualities of manliness, leadership in the student body, development, as well as the scholastic attainments of the candidates as shown by their school records or their records in the admission examinations, or both.

CAMILLE CLIFFORD LOSES LITTLE GIRL

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Hon. Mrs. Henry L. Bruce became a mother last Friday, but the child, a daughter, lived only five days.

Before marriage Mrs. Bruce was Camille Clifford, a Boston chorus girl, who made an international reputation as the typical New York girl in "The Prince of Pilsen."

She married the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, eldest son and heir of Baron Aberdare, October 11, 1908. Their courtship was romantic and their marriage life seems to have been happy.

AUTOIST WILL SUE FOR FALSE ARREST

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 21.—The police, asked by the Providence authorities to be on the lookout for an automobile containing diamonds valued at $8183, Detective Thomas Henry of the Providence police, who accompanied the local officers, when the car was under arrest. The man gave his name as Henry Winn of South Lawrence, Mass., diamond salesman. The police let him go when the difference in the auto number was seen, it is said that Winn will bring suit for false arrest.

REYES FOLLOWERS ARE FOR A WAR

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21.—A special dispatch from Monterey says, that not a reason of any kind could be bought today. Half the men of the town are carrying concealed weapons. Lodges of clandestine Masons, who recognize General Reyes as chief, are preparing a demonstration at Alameda. Trouble is feared.

HOOK BACK ON THE JOB AGAIN

Amateurs of all ages and nationalities, the fair, the fat, the talented and the clumsy were on hand to participate in the new amateur season at the Columbia, and they certainly looked after their end of the bill all right. It was a night of life and action, with the "hook" in the leading role.

In addition to the fun, Manager Farren had two amateur attractive girls on the bill, and they were so neat and winsome that the audience could not do otherwise than vote them the first prize. The favorites were the Doherty sisters of Haverhill.

ANARCHISTS IN SPANISH NET

MADRID, Aug. 21.—The anarchists of Spain are being rounded up. Information has come to the Cabinet that the notorious leaders in the secret anarchist societies are planning a fresh revolt. Government agents are using every possible means to capture the plotters. It is understood that 158 have been secretly arrested.

The anarchists are making capital of the universal dissatisfaction with the affairs in Morocco. The slowness of General Marina in moving against the Moors has given the opportunity which the radicals sought to inflame the people. Literature has been circulated and speeches made defying the policy of General Marina and the Prime Minister, and the workingmen have again been summoned to arms. The call of men from Morocco is another argument which the Anarchists are using to bring about another "Barcelona revolt."

"OLD HOME WEEK" IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 21.—Beginning to-day and for the coming week, the cities and towns of this State will welcome back their native sons and daughters, this being the official old-home week, which is being observed under the auspices of the New Hampshire Old-Home Week Association. Several towns have already held old-home week observances, many wishing to celebrate this event on local anniversaries, which fell on a previous date, but the great majority of the towns and cities will have old-home days during the official period. Ex-Governors Frank W. Rollins and N. Bachelder, president and secretary of the association, respectively, state that this year the event is expected to be more successful than for many years, and much preparation had been made for its observance.

Militant Suffragettes Refuse to Give Bail.

LIVERPOOL—The seven suffragettes who were arrested last night for bombarding a meeting, at which Minister of War Haldane spoke, with bricks and pieces of slate from the roofs of adjoining buildings, were arraigned to-day, but their hearings were postponed until Tuesday. The women were remanded, refusing to attempt to give bail.

The women bombarded the hall and police and arrested within three minutes. The authorities had a difficult time to dislodge them. They were charged with assault and wilful damage.

Isabel Pankhurst Jailed.

GLASGOW—Miss Isabel Pankhurst, the best known of the British women suffragette leaders, was arrested here to-day for disturbing Lord Crewe's meeting last night, but their hearings were postponed until Tuesday. She was remanded. Miss Pankhurst was late when they were brought in and they disdained to secure bail.

Zeppelin to Meet Kaiser.

BERLIN—In view of the fact that Count Zeppelin is just convalescing from his recent illness, the Kaiser frequently has him suggesting that it would be well for the Count not to attempt to sail his airship to Berlin himself on the 28th of this month. The Count has declined the suggestion and will sail the sixty-mile trip from Bitterfeld, where he will board the ship to Berlin.

Favors Yankee Concession.

CONSTANTINOPLE—The Chamber of Deputies has approved a bill granting permission to an American syndicate which seeks to construct a railroad from Sivas, Asiatic Turkey, to Lake Van, near the Persian frontier, a distance of 1,250 miles, on the condition that no more advantageous proposal be made within the sixteen months the syndicate has to complete the line.

44,548 Empty London Houses.

LONDON—John Burns, one of the Labor party leaders, made the remarkable statement in the House of Commons that there are 44,548 empty houses and tenements in London. This is due, he said, to prohibitive rents, but chiefly to the great improvement of rapid transit facilities, enabling people to dwell in pleasant suburbs.

Train Kills Two in Auto.

PARIS—An auto, running at fifty miles an hour, collided with a train near Longjumeau to-day, and the two occupants were instantly killed. The automobilist tried to cross the track in front of the train.

LICENSE LOST, GOES INSANE

Driven insane, to his friends say, after his eighteen months' fight to regain his pony express license in Nevada, Emilio Gargarno, one of the best known Italians in that city, has just been committed to the Mendota asylum.

In May, 1908, the Somerville aldermen cut down the pony express licenses one-half and Gargarno's name was dropped. The fight was begun then. Gargarno spent at almost every meeting of the board, interceding the politicians in his cause. This year Gargarno's request for a license was finally granted, but the board refused to be vetoed by Mayor Wood. Ever since Gargarno has been hanging fire in the board, no attempt being made to pass the order over the Mayor's veto.

GREAT STORM HITS AIRSHIPS AT RHEIMS ON EVE OF JOURNEY

RHEIME, Aug. 21.—A terrific storm of wind and rain which threatened to destroy the great array of aeroplanes brought here for the aerial tournament which opens to-morrow, swept down on Bethony Plain this afternoon, making flights impossible and causing fears that it might seriously cripple the plans for Sunday's opening.

A great number of people in carriages and automobiles attracted by the possibility of trial spins, were on the ground when the storm broke.

Aviators have arrived from every section of the civilized world where aviation has penetrated, to contend for the International Cup. Three countries are represented but the victory is believed to lie between America and France.

As this unique exposition is the first, it is naturally the largest of its kind. The tournament will last seven days and will see a new mark in the world's progress in aviation.

The foremost flying machine experts of the world are already gathered upon Bethony Plain where the aerodrome to which their machines make their testing of the most advanced mechanism in man's jealous attempt to rival the birds of the air.

Dare Death in Flights.

Beginning to-morrow there will be daily and evening flights. Human lives may be sacrificed, but a dozen or more aviators on the ground who is not willing to dare death in the effort to further the practicability of the machine.

There are now on hand here to-day are en route here from other cities of France. Among those on the ground are Glenn H. Curtiss of the United States, M. Santos Dumont of Brazil, M. Paul Tissandier, M. Hubert Latham, M. Louis Blerlot, M. Rene Dubonnet, Captain Burgeat, M. Ruchaquet, Comte de Lambert, Henry Farman, M. Delagrange, M. Fournier, Captain Ferber, M. Lefevre, President Lockhurst of the Aero Club of Great Britain, M. Roggier, Senor Alvarez de Sevilla and M. Alfred Leblanc and M. Delegrange.

There are aeroplanes of every type upon the ground, from the compact little monoplanes used by Blerlot on his successful flight across the channel, to the great white-winged biplanes of the Wright type, powerful and speedy.

Air Battle for Supremacy.

The contests are divided in their nature. Some of the machines have been provided with extra seats for passengers. However, Curtiss, the American, will not risk this dangerous method of demonstrating the strength of the aerial craft.

Curtiss made a trial flight simultaneously with Count Lambert and M. Ruman-Vanilla, and his speed was so greatly in excess of the others that all the experts decided the American machine would surely win the speed contests. Odds are about even between Blerlot, Curtiss and Latham.

There are 250 men and 22 sets of aeroplanes to-day. There are thirty of them on the ground.

David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer of England, and Winston Churchill, President of the English Board of Trade, arrived here to-day.

There will be contests of speeds in which the motors will be keyed up to the bursting point and the aviators will whirl about the aeroplane with the throttle wide open, figuratively speaking. Then there will be contests of control in which the aeroplanes will send their machines down to small and upward and describe graceful circles in the air. The endurance contest will test out the length of time that the aeroplane can keep afloat, and the end will see a free contest showing the best speed and greatest endurance.

France, America, England, Austria and Italy are the countries which will fight out the supremacy of the air, although Santos Dumont, the brilliant young Brazilian who is a pioneer in the field of aviation, is a participant.

A city of sheds house the machines. Among the flying ships on the ground are Friedrich's biplane, the Antoinette, Voisin and Blerlot type of aeroplanes and the Farman type biplane.

Seven Wright Machines.

There being no limit to the number of aeroplanes which may be entered for the races organized by the Rheims committee, several makers have put in more than one machine. The Wright interests are represented by seven aeroplanes, the Blerlot by five and the Antoinettes by three.

Already accommodations in Rheims are at a premium, although this does not affect the aeroplanists, as they are flying upon the ground, but it makes it inconvenient for the visitors. Never has the peaceful little town of Rheims seen so many automobiles filled with wealthy American and English tourists they come ranging in from Paris every hour and the hotels are already crowded beyond hope.

Beds Hauled to Grounds.

Wagons are hauling provisions and beds to Bethony Plain and many of the visitors will live there. Double price is being charged for everything and the cheapness are reaping the harvest of their lives.

Here are some of the prices charged: Hotel rooms, $15 to $30 per day; private houses rented for $100 to $800 for the week.

All of the sixty-eight boxes in the grand stand of the aerodrome were sold at the prices ranging from $50 to $200 according to size. Twenty were booked by cable from America.

A second stand containing seventy-two boxes was hurriedly built and all of these seats have been disposed of at fabulous prices.

$30,000 for Prizes.

The 1,000 seats in the old stand were sold at $10 a week or $4 per day.

Scores of extra gendarmes are here to-day to handle the crowds.

The prize for the endurance race known as the Grand Prize de la Champagne is $20,000. The prize for the speed contest known as the Prix de Vitesse amounts to $4,000, and is shared among four competitors.

The prize for the aeroplane with the greatest carrying power, the Prix de Passagers is $2,000.

In the race of altitude the Prix de L'Altitude the prize is $2,000. The prize for the best flight of a distance is also $2,000.

Monday and Tuesday will see the most exciting events in the speed contests.

Monday will be devoted to the merely uninteresting as compared with the lively competition among the aeroplanists.

ALL CHURCHES GET BEQUESTS

Many public bequests to churches of all denominations in Norfolk County, to the poor and needy and to hospitals, are made in the will of Lucius Clapp of Randolph, which was filed to-day in the Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham. Webster Smith of Randolph is named as executor.

To the Massachusetts General Hospital $5,000 is bequeathed for the founding and maintenance of a bed. The town of Sharon is left $3,000, to be used for books and papers for the public library.

The Methodist Church of North Stoughton and the Methodist Church of Stoughton are bequeathed $500 each. The Methodist, Universalist and Catholic Churches of Stoughton Centre are given $1,000 each, to be used to help the poor, the sick and afflicted.

Emery Packard and Mrs. Victoria Packard of Randolph are given the use of the Clapp mansion in Randolph during their lifetime and then the property is to be equally divided among the Congregational, Unitarian and Baptist Churches of Randolph. The income being used to help the poor, sick and afflicted. All of the personal property, except the money left to Mrs. Victoria Packard and the residue of the estate, is left to Emery Packard and Webster Smith.

ELECTRICITY FIGHTS STEAM IN MAINE

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 21.—A keen battle for the control of the railroad business in northern Maine is being waged by the Bangor & Aroostook and the Canadian Pacific roads, and much public interest is aroused in the fight for the rival companies. The Canadian extension of the Canadian Pacific Road is a branch under the name of the Aroostook Valley Railroad. The new road will be operated by electric power, both passenger and freight, as the Bangor & Aroostook Railway is operated from invasion of territory by steam railroads. The railroad will also be the first 1,200-volt direct current system in New England.

MRS. THAW DECLARES HARRY IS PERSECUTED FOR SPITE AT ASYLUM

MATTEAWAN, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, to-day gave out a signed statement telling of further persecutions of the slayer of Stanford White by asylum attendants. She declares that Dr. Lamb admitted to her and her son that his privileges had been curtailed because the Thaws "did not appreciate what had been done for them when they went to court."

Mrs. Thaw adds that the physician gave no further reasons for his attitude except revenge. Her statement reads:

Instead of a little comfort ordered by Dr. Lamb when my son first went to Matteawan, February 1, 1908, and which Justice Mills ordered to have restored, the superintendent of this institution has deprived him still further.

Even the privilege is denied me of giving my son the whites of eggs and orange juice prepared for him by his own and my provision, and which here-tofore I have given him each afternoon when I made my visit. For the first time in eighteen months they have denied him the privilege of playing the piano.

He is still locked up in the bare cell, which I described in court, at 6 o'clock in the evening, although other patients are allowed to remain up till 9 o'clock.

Yesterday Mrs. Phillips, as she has always done, took up a basket of whatsome food, but was refused permission to see him. Dr. Baker told her they had made "some new rules for Mr. Thaw."

Yesterday my son had nothing whatever to eat from 6:15 a. m. to 8:45 p. m., because a lawyer went to see him at noon during the dinner hour. Even the keepers wished to get him something to eat, but Dr. Baker gave orders that they could not give him anything during eleven and one-half hours.

To-day I carried up a large number of letters, but Dr. Baker told me he could not permit my son to have them. We asked Dr. Lamb for the reason for the new deprivations. He answered that what they had done was not appreciated when we went to court. To this Harry replied:

"Dr. Lamb, I treated both of you and Dr. Baker much better in court than you deserved, so this must be revenge for what my mother said."

We asked Dr. Lamb if he had any further reasons for his attitude except revenge towards me and a desire to enfeeble my son's health so that he would not be able to testify the next time. Dr. Lamb could give no other reason for his conduct. This is the first time I have written about the treatment accorded my son in this institution to which he, a sane, acquitted man, should never have been sent.

THAW LOST 17 POUNDS DURING SANITY TRIAL

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Harry K. Thaw, in the Matteawan Asylum, to-day defied Dr. Robert E. Lamb, superintendent of the institution, and Dr. Amos T. Baker, the assistant superintendent, when they tried to examine into the state of his mind since his recent insanity hearing at White Plains.

Dr. Baker testified at the White Plains hearing that Thaw refused to answer a question about Stanford White when he was interrogated by alienists. This attitude, the alienists thought, indicated that Thaw's mind was unbalanced. The reply invariably made by him when he was asked about White was: "I refuse to answer by advice of counsel."

Dr. Lamb and Dr. Baker visited Thaw to-day and after conversing with him on general topics proceeded to bring up the White question again. Finally it was put to him flatly. Thaw turned up on the alienists, stared coldly at them for a few moments and then said: "I must repeat what I have always said. I decline to answer your question by advice of counsel."

After this he refused to converse with them and they had to give up their line of questioning. Officials of Matteawan still believe that Thaw is insane because of his persistent refusal to discuss Stanford White. One of them said to-day:

"If Thaw left this institution now he would lose any slight hope that might exist for his recovery. This is shown by his physical condition while he was at White Plains. When he left Matteawan he weighed 183 pounds. When he returned he weighed 166 pounds. He ate somewhat free and easy life while he was away from here and he lost weight. Of course, he might have lost weight because of worrying over his hearing; but worrying would hardly cause him to lose seventeen pounds."

Thaw's mother has taken up her home in the Phillips cottage, about a mile away from the Matteawan Institution.

350 GUESTS FLEE FROM A HOTEL FIRE

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 21.—More than four hundred guests of the Coronado and Peak's Island Hotels at Peak's Island, were driven into the streets early to-day by flames, which threatened to destroy both big Summer hotels. Many of the guests were clad only in their night clothes. It is considered remarkable that every one escaped without injury. Many of the guests were obliged to rush from rooms on the fourth floor.

The fire, which was discovered in the storeroom of the Coronado House, quickly became so threatening that the guests of both hotels were warned to flee without waiting to save clothing or valuables. In the Coronado House were 350 Summer visitors and in the Peak's Island House were several scores. But few took time to dress before rushing to the street.

The fire was discovered by Bartlee Flaherty, a member of the Portland City Council. Flaherty warned the employes of both hotels and then sang in an alarm. The fire department, fearing a spread of the fire through both hotels, called for volunteers, and several hundred men answered. With hand extinguishers the volunteers managed to check the flames until the firemen got three lines of hose playing. Meanwhile an alarm had been sent to this city and Chief Eldredge sent a company of picked men aboard the fireboat to the island. The fire was under control before the boat reached the island.

The loss is practically confined to stock in the storeroom of the Coronado House.

The Coronado House is a four-story building and the guests were scattered through rooms on all of the floors. There was no panic when the alarm was given and the coolness of the guests alone probably saved a catastrophe.

ADAMS FAILS TO GET BAIL, GOES TO CELL

A. F. D. Adams, the Boston note broker indicted for embezzlement in connection with the Eclipse Oil Company stock scandle, was still in the Tombs New York, to-day, his attorney having failed to raise the $12,000 demanded for bail, according to special despatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The investigation of the theft of $110,000 worth of Heinze copper stock went on in New York to-day and Assistant District Attorney Solf said that the inquiry would not be concluded until everybody criminally connected with the transaction is indicted.

At least two more indictments will be handed down by the grand jury, was stated to-day, and also important developments in Wall Street.

Windsor Trust Out of It.

There will be no indictments against any officer or director of the Windsor Trust Company. The District Attorney's office takes the view that while the part played by the Windsor Trust Company may have been questionable from the standpoint of good banking, none of its officers violated any criminal statute, since it could be held to be indict.

There is only one thing that might change the attitude of District Attorney Jerome and that is the offering of the Windsor Trust Company, and that is a statement from Stirling Birmingham, the receiver of the bank department. Birmingham stands a chance of going to the penitentiary for a year should he be convicted of the charge of getting a bonus of $250 for putting the $50,000 Joyce loan through the Windsor Trust Company.

Bail Plan Goes Astray.

Mr. Adams was to be walked into the District Attorney's office and gave him self up, had no idea that he was going to spend the night over in Police Knicker-bocker's home. The District Attorney's office also had no expectation that Broker Adams would be a guest of the "Ol' Inn" that night.

He had not given himself up until his lawyers had arranged that the bail shouldn't be excessive—$12,000 was the amount agreed upon between Adams's representative and the District Attorney. That happened two or three days ago, and naturally acting District Attorney Nott expected Adams to walk in with the cash or a bond in his pocket.

CHIEF GONE; IS NAMED IN DIVORCE SUIT

It was learned to-day from a reliable source that Harvey G. Brockman, chief of police of Wakefield has been named in a libel for divorce filed July 20th in the clerk's office East Cambridge by George H. Wales of Wakefield against his wife, Florence. Friends of Brockman say this accounts for the mysterious action for the past two weeks in not making known his present whereabouts.

Mrs. Annie Brockman wife of the chief, for something did not know her husband's whereabouts. Yesterday she told a friend that she had received a letter from her husband but he did not give his present address. In this letter he said that he had resigned from the office of police chief of Wakefield, besides resigning from other organizations with which he was affiliated.

Brockman left Wakefield for his vacation, returning August 7. At this time he settled all his accounts with Tax Collector Watson. The same day Brockman he left town again and has not been seen since. Much talk is occasioned by his sudden departure without any visible reason. It is feared the affairs of the police department in the hands of Patrolman James M. McFarland, who is the present acting chief.

It was after Brockman had not attended the war manoeuvres, being a lieutenant of the Fifth Regiment, Third Brigade, Sixth Regiment, M. V. M., that friends became worried. Knowing him to be a hard worker they thought that his mind had become affected.

Mrs. Brockman, when seen at her mother's home at Lynn, refused to talk. Wakefield, to-day refused to discuss the case.

Brockman has three grown children, the oldest being John Jiffeny Gray. Myra, Magda Lorraine and Wendell Hazelton Gray. He has been chief of the Wakefield police for three years. He is a native of Lynn, and has ever bought a pretty cottage at No. 7 Nichols street where he lived with his wife and children.

THOUSANDS GO TO CHARITIES

Under the will of the Mrs. Marion Davis Hollingsworth, widow of the wealthy Boston paper manufacturer, filed at Dedham to-day, numerous bequests are made. To her children, Alice, Howard and Lilly R., $5,000 each is left, and to her brother's wife, Mrs. Ella Larkin Davis, is given $10,000.

Booker Washington's School at Tuskegee gets $2,000, and $2,000 is also left to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The Kindergarten School for the Blind at Jamaica Plain, the Home for Crippled and Deformed Children in Roxbury, the Farm Helping Home for Boys in Vermont, the Voorhees Industrial School in South Carolina and the Home for Crippled Children in Hyde Park each receive $1,000, while the public library and the Unitarian Church in Milton receives $500.

The sum of $50,000 is left in trust for Alice M. Josselyn, and Ida D. Emerson, and $20,000 in trust for a brother, Eugene Davis. On the death of Mrs. Emerson and her husband the trust fund will go to the American Unitarian Society of Boston, also $20,000 up the death of the brother Eugene.

SOCIETY GIRL LOSES GEMS

LENOX, Aug. 21.—Miss Gertrude Parsons, daughter of John E. Parsons, of this town, is mourning the loss of a magnificent pearl and diamond necklace, which she dropped somewhere between Cobbleside, Capaha Josh S. Barnes's villa on the Lee road, and Stonover, Mr. Parsons's estate.

Miss Parsons had been attending a garden party given by Miss Cornelia Burges and went home in her carriage. Some time after her arrival there she missed the necklace, which contained seventy pearls and a large diamond clasp. It is valued at several thousand dollars. The necklace has been greatly admired at dinner and garden parties, and is one of the most valuable in town.

ALABAMA SURE IS SORE ON WET GOODS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 21.—The Fuller prohibition bill has passed the senate and is expected to become a law Monday.

The measure forbids the possession of liquor except in homes, making the accused party prove his innocence before any evidence against him is introduced. The bill makes the use of the word saloon a crime. Bars the advertisement of liquors from billboards and signs, and holds that even the possession of a Federal liquor license is an absolute proof of guilt in violation.

SENDS BOSTON GIRL TO HOME

NORTH ADAMS, Aug. 21.—Crying as though her heart would break, pretty eighteen-year-old Margaret Rippa of No. 85 Everett street, East Boston, appeared in the private chamber of Judge Phelps in the district court and asked to be protected from her sweetheart, Joseph Sarvillo, who, she said, threatened to kill her last night on Main street. After hearing her story Judge Phelps made arrangements with the police to have her sent home.

Sarvillo is twenty-four years old, and formerly lived in Boston. He is a stone mason by trade and works in this city. Several weeks ago he called at the residence of the girl in East Boston and visited her mother, Mrs. Anna Schianapo, who gave her consent when he asked the hand of Margaret in marriage.

Going to the office of a lawyer in Boston, Sarvillo got a certificate. He showed this to Margaret and said that it was a marriage license. He persuaded her to come to this city, bring a room for her and her small sister at No. 28 Marshall street.

Sarvillo never visited them at the house, but last night he met Margaret on Main street and a quarrel followed.

COUNTERFEIT CASE CONTINUED

Louis J. Sinnotte, the Haverhill druggist, and Dennis Gaurin, one of Haverhill, to whom Sinnotte is alleged to have sold a counterfeit half-dollar for twenty-five cents, were to-day arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. Sinnotte was held in $500 for a further trial August 25, while Gaurin was allowed to go on his personal recognizance. His case will also be heard further August 25.

FUND TO KEEP MRS. EDDY'S HOMESTEAD

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—In the will of the late Edward A. Kimball, just filed to the Probate Court provision is made for the creation of a fund to aid in keeping in perpetual repair Pleasant View, the home stead of Mary Baker G. Eddy at Concord, N. H. Mr. Kimball was an ardent Christian Scientist and the proposed fund will come from the sale of his books, papers and writings.

The widow, Mrs. Katherine Kimball, is bequeathed the greater part of the estate, with the exception of $2,000 and the testator's interest in the books of Mrs. Eddy. The $2,000 was given to two children, Wallace D. Kimball and Edna Kimball.

The copyright, interest and title to the works of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, which Kimball had purchased, were bequeathed to John Carroll Lathrop of New York, with the revised editions of the works provided the beneficiary agrees that the net profits be used to create a trust fund for the opportunity and secured a name from the next room. With it she cut her throat three times.

JAIL COUPLE FOR THEFT ON TRAIN

John J. O'Brien, of No. 34 Columbus avenue, was given ten months, and his wife four months in jail for stealing a dress suit case from a Pullman car in the South Station.

As the train was about to pull out a porter saw Mrs. O'Brien alighting, carrying the case, which the porter knew belonged to an elderly woman. A station policeman arrested them.

CAMBRIDGE GIRL IS A LIFE SAVER

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 21.—Miss R. Marjorie Bourne, of Cambridge, made a gallant rescue of a seven-year-old girl who was bathing in the Warren River at Barrington, Miss Bourne, who is a member of the life saving corps bathing, when she observed that one had gone down in the water. Miss Bourne plunged overboard, reached the child's side and brought her ashore.

GOV. DRAPER BACK AT STATE HOUSE

Governor Eben S. Draper to-day returned to his duties at the State House after an absence of almost a week, which time he spent on the "battlefield" with the boys in the Ring. The Governor does not look much the worse for his experience and declined to make any statement at the present time.

GIRL CLERKS STONED WHEN WOMEN RIOT

PITTSBURG, Aug. 21.—When a party of clerks and girl stenographers left the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant, were the strike is on, to go to Pullman, a town numbering 1,500—mostly women and relatives of the strikers—jeered and hooted at them, despite the fact that deputy sheriffs were guarding them.

When the deputies ordered the women rioters to disperse, they began to strike with right hand left with clubs and sling shots, made by placing portions of bricks in long stockings. The girl stenographers became hysterical, and several of them fainted in the streets and were trampled upon. The others of the party took to their heels and sought refuge in a restaurant. Few, however, escaped bruises and cuts as they ran the gauntlet of the angry women.

The rioting women then surrounded the restaurant and bombarded it with rocks until they broke every window. Meanwhile the state constabulary troops had been telephoned for. They came on the gallop with their riot clubs out.

The rioters stood their ground, throwing handfuls of dust into the eyes of the horses and trying to pull the troopers from their saddles. The constabulary men had to push the women before them with the butts of carbines to get them to disperse. Even this failed, and it was not until a volley of shots had been fired over the rioters' heads that they were driven away.

CHIEFS ARE STUNG FOR "RUBBERING"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Acting Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds said to-day that he had received complaints from the clerks that their immediate superiors had read the cards of inquiry intended for special agents in search of information. The cards sent the clerks in the department contained a question requiring clerks to give opinions about their chiefs' methods of doing business and also what the clerks thought of the work. This was understood by the employes to be for the eye only of the secretary alone, but it seems that some of the chiefs considered that it was their privilege to read the cards also and many of them read opinions about themselves that were anything but complimentary.

HARVARD FUND TO AID SOUTHERNERS

The Southern scholarships provided for Harvard by the generosity of the widow of James Augustus Rumrill, A. B., 1850, of Springfield, will be announced on or about September 15 for the academic year 1909-10. They will be known as the James A. Rumrill scholarships.

Three scholarships of $225 each will be offered each year to properly qualified students in their first year of residence in undergraduate life at Harvard College, who enter Harvard from secondary schools in Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee or Kentucky.

WINTHROP OFF TO TARGET PRACTICE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop left to-day for Hampton Roads to witness the target practice of the North Atlantic fleet now assembled there. He will be the guest of Mr. Winthrop, Rear Admiral Potter, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, will be acting secretary of the department.

SPEND $150,000,000 ON THE RAILWAYS

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Nearly $150,000,000 worth of new orders for equipment and power have been announced by the Chicago Northwestern railroad and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe. The latter road is buying steel for 700 miles of new track. The former is buying $11,000,000 worth of power equipment.

CANNED MUSIC IS SWEET FOOD FOR HOT FIRE

By lively work the fire department extinguished a brisk fire which had started on the second floor at No. 41 Washington street last night and had put in badly the crowded business district surrounding. Though hampered by thick clouds of dense smoke which arose from burning rolls of graph records, the firemen kept the flames to one apartment. The damage was about $1,000, mostly to desks and cabinets and of "canned music," which never had a chance in the fight.

The building at No. 41 Washington street is a five-story brick structure. The entire first floor is the hardware store of Evans & Mudge. The second floor is occupied by Pike's Talking Machine Company. The three upper floors are cut up into offices and small operating rooms.

The fire started, from cause unknown, in a rear room on the second floor used for storing talking machine records. It was discovered by a passer by, who pulled in an alarm from the nearest box.

Fire Chief Hayes and District Chief Sennott found they could not get at the fire from the front, so they took hose lines in through the second-story front windows and dragged them across the building through the dense smoke.

FAITH PROPAGATION SOCIETY TO MOVE

The offices of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith connected with the archdiocese of Boston are soon to be moved from the old wooden building on Union Park street to a substantial brick building on Malden street, opposite the Cathedral recently which Archbishop O'Connell has leased. The archbishop has also given the society's director, the Rev. James Anthony Walsh, an assistant in the person of the Rev. James J. Reehan, the present executive head of the Working Boys' Home.

BLUE ARMY BREAKS CAMP AND RETURNS HOME AS REDS SAIL

The Army of Invasion, the boys in Khaki, wearing red lands on their campaign hats, having conquered, theoretically, came to Boston, saw Boston and left during the fore part of the day, while the Army of Defence, the Massachusetts boys, wearing the blue lands around their hats, came marching home.

Camp was broken early to-day at South Hanover and for hours citizen soldiers were hurrying away from the South Station in every direction as the long special troop trains brought them here. Battery A was in early, Battery B and C pulled in to Worcester and Lawrence, where they disbanded. The local battery disbanded in the Irvington street armory.

The Second and Sixth infantry and the Coast Artillery corps marched five miles to their trains at Rockland, while, tramped three miles to the station at Hanover.

The Second Connecticut sailed from here last night on the transport Meade. The transport Kilpatrick took the line and staff officers of the invading army to New York at noon. The New York and New Jersey troops reached New York on the Fall River steamers Pilgrim and Puritan. They presented far different appearance from what they did a week ago and were draggled, sore and tired.

This afternoon the boys are practically all at their homes, and it can this is true of the Massachusetts boys. The District of Columbia troops left on their long trip part about noon. The Tenth cavalry, the colored regiment, sailed on the transports at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

General Pew still believes that he won the manoeuvres and successful defended Boston. General Bliss, the head of the invading army, says that if the umpires had not called the game off as they did he would have marched into Boston by to-day and probably yesterday. General Wood, the chief umpire, says that General Pew was not decisively beaten.

Colonel William H. Donovan, commander of the Fighting Ninth, is soon to retire. This will probably mean the advancement of the other officers, with the probable election of Lieutenant John J. Sullivan as his successor.

Docks Looked Warlike.

Not within the memory of the oldest longshoreman on the water front have the New Haven docks, South Boston, seemed so warlike as when the Connecticut and Washington troops arrived from Hanover and embarked on the transports Meade, Sumner and McClellan for home. There were 2,500 men in all to go aboard, and they reached the docks in special trains from the scene of war, stepping about thirty of the Connecticut marchers, who covered the line of march on bicycles.

The trains were delayed for the war scare. It had been intended to get some of the transports off yesterday. But because the Connecticut men didn't arrive a few minutes before they did, the Meade could not get away till to-day. The Meade heads for New Haven with 1,050 of the Connecticut men. The Sterling and the Kilpatrick with the First and Second Regiments and Separate Battalion of Washington, which did not receive their orders. They make their departure to-day, however.

Every train that came in was composed of day coaches and flat cars. On the latter were the gun carriages with the guns dismounted. The soldiers' guns were all attached through the ear windows, and no train after train pulled in it looked like sure enough war.

To say that the men looked glad that Boston line was over is putting it mildly. The squad that came over the road on their bikes said it on their mustaches, as they discovered some watermelons on route, that had helped along. Some of the Washington men declared it was their first trip to Boston. They are coming again, under happier conditions.

Red Army Breaks Camp.

The first of the Red Army to leave the scene of the theoretical carnage were the New York regiments, which started with the Twenty second and the crack Seventh. They went by train to Fall River, where they embarked on the Sound steamers Puritan and Pilgrim and the freighter Bedford.

The steamer New Hampshire of the New Bedford-New York line carried a large number of supplies and other regular army officers when it left New Bedford for New York.

The longest "hike" awaits the colored regiment of the Tenth District Cavalry, who started over the road for their home at Fort Robert Allen, Wash., on leaving to the Canadian line. The colored soldiers camped at Braintree for the night.

Rest In Blue Camp.

In the camp of the Blue Army, while strict military discipline was maintained, there was no work in the shape of drills for the men to perform, and everyone was given an opportunity to secure a well-earned rest.

The people throughout southern Massachusetts, where the manoeuvres have taken place, generally express regret at the departure of the soldiers. Only in a few cases have depredations of any disorder been reported. As a whole, the people living in the war zone have been much favorably impressed with the behavior of the soldiers and have extended them many favors. They also have been willing to entertain to their own financial advantage, for the soldiers have been buying fresh bread, cake, pies, vegetables, eggs and poultry.

POLICE TRY TO HIDE A 'SLIGHT ROW'; RIOT, SAYS EYE WITNESS

The more one digs into the system of secrecy which has been perfected by Police Commissioner O'Meara the easier it is to see how the taxpayers of Boston have been duped into the belief that their $2,000,000 police force was about as good as any—that Boston had come pretty near solving many of the problems of crime which curse other cities. It was something of a shock to read in the AMERICAN that the Watch and Ward Society had ready to prove the existence of more than 200 dives, every one of them paying protection money to somebody.

Then the city's principal business contemplance has become a sort of a second Chicago "levee" is slowly getting into the public mind. The presence of several hundred notorious women there as soon as night falls has but one meaning.

Just to illustrate how beautifully the system of secrecy works and how thoroughly the urbane commissioner has perfected it, the AMERICAN gives to-day the facts of a murderous riot in one of the most crowded sections of the city a few nights ago. The police deliberately denied all knowledge of it, notwithstanding the fact that it took two patrol wagon loads of policemen to club the mob into submission.

Riot Call Sent In.

Ten Sicilians armed with 44-calibre Colt automatic revolvers and knives suddenly engaged in a deadly fight at Portland and Pitt streets about 10 o'clock at night. There was a fusillade and the bullets went smashing through shop windows and caused the shopkeepers to hurry to bar their doors. One man fell at the first fire, but was carried away by his companions. The street at the time was thronged with people from the many tenements round about and they ran screaming to whatever shelter they could find.

Policeman Nash of Station 3 sent a riot call to the Jay street station and then hurried bravely into the fighting mob, seeking his club. Fifteen minutes after he sent in his call two patrol wagon loads of cops appeared.

The fight was started at Chardon and Merrimac streets, where Sicilians threw knives on each other. They fought their way to the middle of Merrimac street in front of the big Riker-Jaynes drug store and then began to use their pistols. Several shots were exchanged. A number of their friends joined and a call went to the Metropolitan Loan Company and tried to bar knives and razors, but they were thrown out.

Story of Eye Witness.

The fight went right on, bullets flying, knives flashing for a quarter of an hour. That some of the fighters were not killed and that none of the fifty or more persons who witnessed the fight were hit by bullets from the fusillade of shots being apart from the quarrel was almost a miracle.

P. K. Olufsen, proprietor of the Quincy cigar store at No. 64 Merrimac street, who was an eye witness, said:

"About 9 o'clock at night I heard shots fired and angry voices. I saw three men in front of Turner's saloon and two more men in the street fighting. Each had a revolver or a knife. Two more men came down from Pitt street and joined the others. For nearly five minutes the men fought desperately. I then saw Patrolman Nash coming down Merrimac street and try to separate them. The fighters started to run away. Nash tried to get his one who did not escape, but when he would get a man someone in the crowd which had gathered would yell that he wasn't the man.

About fifteen minutes later two wagon loads of police officers came, but the men had all escaped through Pitt street.

"While the fight was going on the people on the sidewalks were trying to get away from the scene. I never in all my experience saw such a desperate affair in the city streets. The stores in the vicinity were compelled to close and the merchants could clearly see the flash of the revolvers and the knives. I did not know where the shots would be fired next, and I guess every one in the neighborhood thought the same. For a time the lives of innocent people were threatened by these men. The police should have more than a man in this neighborhood.

At Station 3 Captain Peabody, when asked if any arrests had been made over the affair, said:

"This is certainly news to me. I did not know anything about it. There is nothing in the books about such a row. I shall make an investigation about it. It may be that a wagon load of officers was sent to Merrimac and Portland streets for a disturbance. But if they arrived too late, why, of course, no record would have been kept. As the disturbance might have been a very slight affair, which would not warrant an arrest."

A slight affair, forsooth! This will cause some to ask the Captain what he considers a serious one.

"Day Off" Abuses.

The writer of the following, a policeman, brings up a question which is causing much dissatisfaction among his comrades —the commissioner's failure to make effective the new law giving every man one day off in fifteen:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

While writing about the partial enforcement of laws I would call attention to an act entitled "One Day Off in Fifteen to all Police Officers."

Here we may see no enforcement of one law in various forms. The police commissioner, after having had three months to prepare and unlimited power to carry it out, issues a statement that he is doing a hard matter to regulate, if the men would be patient everything would be arranged satisfactorily to all. Within forty-eight hours it was arranged satisfactorily to the day officers, about one-third of thing has been done to keep the promise, and that is as far as any advance made to arrange a fair schedule.

If it was fair when first put into effect, why ask the men to be patient, and why has not something been done to make it fair and keep the promise made? As a result of the matter being left to the captains of the different divisions we find something like this:

One day off in every twelve and eighteen days; one day off in every fourteen and a half; one day off in every fifteen. The inspectors and lieutenants have a day off. If a law can be construed into so many different meanings by the men in command, too much cannot be expected from the police officers themselves. FAIR PLAY.

Policeman Scores Condition.

Here is a policeman (one of many) who is taking much quiet satisfaction in the AMERICAN'S exposure of the evils of a vicious system which the common patrolmen know exist and with which the majority have small sympathy. Read his letter:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a constant reader of your valuable paper, and I can't express my delight in knowing that the public at last has an opportunity to know the doings of the Boston police department. I can truthfully say that every charge that the BOSTON AMERICAN has made, and published, are the bare facts. The action of the commissioner proves that. There is much as yet to tell.

I am a police officer and have studied the doings of the department closely for the past few years. Police officials that will uphold such dens as the Hotel Pledge will not hesitate to do almost anything but enforce the law.

The Boston police force is so rotten that a visitor would close his nose in passing over the city.

Owing to fear of being dismissed from the force I will withhold my name for the present. However, later on I will write an article for publication that will awaken slumbering Boston.

I hope that you will continue in your good work, and always remember that the good men of the city are for you.

BOSTON POLICEMAN.

Among other letters received is the following:

Congratulates American.

Editor Boston American:

The Woman's Homestead Association of Boston wishes to congratulate the AMERICAN on its noble work in exposing vice in our city. For three months the society has had an efficient committee at work investigating the slums and will gladly give any gud all co-operation it can to co-workers on that line.

AUTO ROMANCE HAS MIDNIGHT WEDDING END

Impressed by the beauty and winning ways of Miss Mary Elizabeth Kane, Boston, whom he met while on an automobile ride to this city a year ago, Thomas Warren Crosby, son of Dr. Crosby, millionaire ex-Mayor of Brattleboro, Vt., and a student at the military academy at Norwich, Ct., began a courtship which culminated in a midnight marriage at Providence, R. I.

On the day before the marriage Crosby started to his city friend, Frederic Lansdale, and asked him to motor to Pawtucket.

The couple had no difficulty in securing a license from City Clerk John W. Rowe, whom they awakened after midnight, but they were obliged to call on Episcopal Bishop Perry, to find one who would perform the ceremony. He referred them to the Rev. R. O. Nixon, pastor of the First Methodist Church, who was willing to perform the ceremony, was found.

REFUSES AID TO MAN WHO LED DUAL LIFE

Mrs. Tessie Mercer of No. 233 Freeport street, Dorchester, wife of Alexander Mercer, who admitted in the Roxbury District Court that he has been leading a dual life for five years, declared to-day that she is through with him forever. "I don't know anything about my husband," she said. "I'm through with him. I am not interested in him or in his case in any way. I have nothing in common with him any more. Our children are well able to take care of themselves and I am not worrying about the future. I did not go to court to help him or to defend him. I don't care. He is in the hands of the law and the courts may deal with him. I do not see any reason why I should attempt to interfere or try to help him."

Mercer, who is forty-eight years old, admitted before Judge Williams in the Roxbury District Court that for three days a week he has lived with one wife and five children at No. 233 Freeport street and for four days a week with Kate Lane, the mother of four children, at No. 181 Vernon street, Roxbury.

At the latter place it developed in court that Mercer was known as Alexander Lane. It was declared that he had led this dual life for the past three years, accounting for his weekly absences from the two homes on the plea that business carried him out of the city.

It was charged that Mercer and Kate Lane got into a quarrel Sunday, August 8, and that he left her, saying: "You'll never see me again."

The next day Mercer went to Kate Lane's home, it was told in court, hired a car and the woman took one immediately following. He saw him get off and enter the Freeport street house. Then on to the door and was met by Mercer's other wife, who declared: "My husband just came in here," she said breathlessly.

"My husband just came in here," rejoined Mrs. Mercer positively.

More words followed, then Kate Lane hurried to the Roxbury Crossing police station, where she entered a complaint against Mercer. He was arrested and so was she on a like charge. He suspended sentence on both Thursday next and held the man in $1,000 bail and the woman in $500.

Kate Lane said that Mercer met her seven years ago while he was working in Attleboro as a slate worker. An acquaintance sprung up between them then which has continued ever since, according to the woman.

6 MEN FALL 600 FEET IN AIRSHIP

ROME, Aug. 21.—The new military airship, with a crew of six men, fell 600 feet during an ascension and landed in Lake Bracciano. The accident was caused by an escape of gas which could not be checked. The crew was rescued, but the airship was considerably damaged.

If the airship had fallen on land there would probably have been several fatalities.

EXPLOSION CAUSES FIRE ON LEE ESTATE

WESTWOOD, Aug. 21.—Holmes Lyon, caretaker on the estate of George C. Lee, Jr., of the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., Boston, was badly burned, and the mansion was endangered, by a gasoline explosion that led to the destruction of a water tank. The explosion ignited billions of gasolene and flames quickly spread to the near tower above. For some time it appeared as though the flames would spread to the large house nearby, so the owner left the tower to town and turned their attention to the house.

HELD FOR FORGERIES.

Jose Van Derberg, a musician, is under arrest in New York on request of the Boston police, on a charge of forgery. It is alleged that he forged the name of Andreas Brussie on two checks for $50 each, one of which was passed at the Hotel Lenox and the other on James F. Connor of No. 128 Dartmouth street, on July 21. Both checks were on the National Shawmut Bank.

Precautions by Rouletabille.

ROUTETABILLE had not even the politeness to inquire into the explanation of this amazing soliloquy. He appeared to be plunged in the deepest meditation. All the graces and coquetries of Mme. Edith had no effect in awakening us to any semblance of life. Professor Stangerson, since he had learned the cruel, the miserable truth, had not for one moment been able to free himself from the thought of it.

He had experienced only indifference in regard to her marriage to Robert Darzac although the latter had been the best beloved of his pupils. In vain Mathilde, with all the warmest tenderness, had endeavored to rekindle the old feeling in the heart of her father. She knew well that he had changed toward her, that his glance never dwelt upon her in the old fond way, and that his weary eyes were looking back into the past at an image which he had only dreamed was her own. And she knew, too, that when those eyes rested upon her—upon her, Mathilde Darzac—it was to see at her side, not the honored figure of a good man and tender husband, but the shadow, eternally living, eternally infamous, of the other—the man who had stolen his daughter. The professor could not work no longer. The great secret of the dissolution of matter which he had promised to reveal to mankind, had returned to the unknown from which, for a moment, the scientist had drawn it.

* * * * * * *

The evening meal was rendered still more doleful by the setting in which it was served—the sombre hall, lighted by a feeble lamp, with old candelabra of wrought iron, and the walls of the fortress adorned with oriental tapestries, against which were ranged the old suits of armor dating back to the first Saracen invasion and the sieges of Dagobert.

I looked at the members of the party, and it seemed to me that I was able to see reason enough for the general sadness. Mlle. Mme. Darzac were seated beside each other. The mistress of the house had evidently not desired to separate a bridal pair, whose union only dated back to yesterday, or the two, I must say that the more unhappy looking was, beyond a doubt, one friend, Robert. He never spoke one word. Mme. Darzac joined to some extent in the conversation, exchanging now and then a few commonplaces with Arthur Rance.

One would have said that she had been relieved by the flight of the apparition, and when I expressed my opinion to Rouletabille later in the evening, I discovered that he shared it, and he explained the reason for Mathilde's change of manner in the simplest possible fashion. The unhappy woman had dreaded nothing so much as the thought that Larsan was going mad, and the certainty that she had not been the victim of a mental delusion, cruel as that certainly was, had served to make her a little more calm. She preferred to fight even against the living Larsan than against a phantom. In the first interview which she had had with Rouletabille in the Square Tower, while I was dressing for dinner, she had, my young friend told me, been completely overwhelmed by the dread that insanity was coming upon her.

Rouletabille, in telling me of this interview, acknowledged to me that he had taken altogether different means to calm Mathilde from those which Robert Darzac had employed—that is, he made no effort to conceal from her that her eyes had seen clearly and had seen Frederic Larsan. When she was told that Robert Darzac knew it, doubtless the truth to her with work from the lasting room, and they obwould be less horrible. Besides, he added, tained a layoff. out the trouble was settled by installation because he feared for its effect upon her, of more stitching machines to keep the and that he had been the first to tele- lasting room moving.

that it was almost a sob. She took Rouletabille's hands in her own and covered them with kisses, just as a mother kisses the hands of her little child. Evidently she was instinctively drawn toward the youth by all the mysterious forces of maternal affection, in spite of the fact that her child had died years before. It was just at this point that the two had first entered through the window of the tower the form of Frederic Larsan, standing erect in the boat. At first, both had remained, stupefied, motionless and mute at the sight. Then a cry of rage escaped from the agonized heart of Rouletabille, and he longed to pursue the man and reckon with him, face to face, as we have told how Mathilde held him back clinging to him upon the parapet. Later, my mind, apparently, horrible as was the resurrection of Larsan, it was less horrible than the continual and supernatural resurrection of a Larsan who had no existence save in her own diseased brain. She no longer saw Larsan everywhere around her. She saw him in the flesh, as he was.

At one moment trembling with nervousness, the next gentle and composed, now patient and in another instant impatient, Mathilde, even while conversing with Arthur Rance, showed for her husband the most charming and sweetest solicitude imaginable. She was attentive to him at every moment, serving him herself, and smiling gently at him as she did so, warning him carefully, to be sure that he was not overtired and that the light did not strike too near his eyes. Robert thanked her for her cares, but seemed none the less frightfully unhappy. And his demeanor compelled me to recollect that the resuscitation of Larsan would undoubtedly result to Mme. Darzac that before she was Mme. Darzac, she had been Mme. Jean Roussel Ballmeyer Larsan before God and herself, and even, so far as the transatlantic laws are concerned, before men as well.

"DESTINY OF HORACE GREELY JENKS"—Everybody who loves good, old-fashioned domestic idiots will enjoy this story in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

STABBING FOLLOWS THEFT CHARGE

As a result of accusing Joseph Gagnon, a fellow lodger at No. 390 Washington street, Lynn, of taking articles from his room, which he had missed from time to time, Fred Spring, 23 years old, was in the Lynn Hospital suffering from a stab wound inflicted by Gagnon. The latter is under arrest, charged with assault with a deadly weapon; he also is about thirty years of age. Spring received a gash about three inches deep in the lower rib on the left side and it is feared the wound may prove fatal. Gagnon will be held till the consequences of the injuries are determined.

BAR HARBOR HORSE SHOW DRAWS CROWD

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 21.—To-day's weather was glorious for the second day of the horse show. The uncompleted events of the first day were carried out and the most enjoyable or more largely attended horse show has been given here, and interest is already shown in next season's fete.

STRIKING LASTERS BACK AT BEVERLY

BEVERLY, Aug. 21.—Sixty-two lasters returned to work at the Woodbury Shoe Company's plant to-day after being out ten days. The lasters had been subject to frequent layoffs while the stitchers in the room were busy. Most of the stitchers left work from the lasting room, and they obtained a layoff.

TENNIS CRACKS ARE GUESTS AT CASINO DANCE

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The event of the day at Newport Friday was the fashionable subscription ball given by the Casino managers in honor of the players in the national lawn tennis tournament. This is the third year that society has paid tribute to the tennis players on the occasion of the annual tourney, and the cottage colony, especially the younger set, were out in full force.

Nearly every one who entertains much had a dinner party, and from the various dinners the guests came trooping in dozens and scores, gay in mood and gowned in their smartest and most becoming costumes.

Among those were received by the patronesses, who were Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Ricardo Stevens, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Miss Edith Wetmore, Mrs. Barger Wallach, Mrs. E. D. Morgan and Mrs. R. L. Beckman.

The ball committee consisted of Austen Gray, Elisha Dyer, M. A. C. Taylor, William Spencer, Robert W. Goelet, R. L. Beekman, Barton Wim, Willing and Egerton L. Winthrop. A few of the guests were Count and Countess Carl von Moltke, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Austen Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Adams, Miss Mary Wetmore, Miss Edith Wetmore, Miss Anna Sands, Miss Kathryn Lawrence, William T. Sands, Charles Sands, James T. Woodward, Mrs. Arthur Chester, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Norman, Frederick Winthrop, Miss Lota Robinson, Mrs. J. Frew Pierson, Miss Pierson, Miss Ruth Trombly, Mrs. Francis Potter, the Barger Wallaches and the Marsden J. Perrys.

* * *

This was the afternoon of the private horse show down at Pride's when Judge William H. Moore entertained the distinguished company that had been invited to see the riding and driving on the train ing and exhibition tracks. Judge and Mrs. Moore are entertaining a large house party for the day at their Summer place, Rockmarge.

Marked interest and curiosity centers around the dinner and dance in Miss Blanche's honor this Friday evening, owing to the rumor that on this occasion the engagement of Miss Blanche and Leonard Moorhead Thomas may be announced. About fifty guests, all of the younger set, have been invited, among them Mr. Thomas.

Mrs. Ole Bull of Brattle street, Cambridge, is in Greenacre, where she is being entertained by a number of the Summer colony, among them Miss May Wright Sewall.

Among those who attended the large dinner dance at the Harbor Hill home of Mrs. Glen Collins were Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Chesterman Chester, house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Conoway of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Philip Dexter of Massachusetts avenue has given a silver cup for which there will be competition at the annual horse show of the North Shore Horticultural Society.

Charles de Rham is at Newport for the tennis tournament and the ball, and has gone to the De Rham country house at Coin Springs, New York. The De Rhams have been entertained this week at Manchester by Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Dana of Cambridge.

Miss Alice Sohier, fiancee of Herbert B. Shaw, has been the guest of Mrs. Ole Bull's man Shaw at her Summer place in Lenox, and has this week extended her visit to Lenox.

Caleb Loring of the Eastern Yacht Club and Clarence Blair of the Corinthian Bensonhurst Club are rejoicing over the decision whereby their boats joined C. H. Curtis's Ellen in the international races at Marblehead next week. The Joliette made an excellent showing and even the defeated yachts made a most hearty in their congratulations.

Miss Dorothy Forbes was the winner again yesterday at the Bar Harbor horse show, taking second in the ladies' obstacle driving class. Mrs. Paul Dendy Mills of Philadelphia took the blue, Miss Anne Morgan the third and Mrs. Peter Labousse fourth.

Henry Vanderbilt arrived Thursday on the Mauretania and went directly to Mrs. T. P. Hallowell's Marble House at Newport. He will assist at the big suffrage affair, which many Bostonians are to attend.

Still another foreign embassy is to be established at Lenox, which is already awarming with members of the diplomatic set, as Baron von Hengelmuller of the Austro-Hungarian embassy has taken The Wilk, which the Baron has occupied on other occasions but already been leased and so far another has not been selected. The party will arrive in October from abroad.

Mrs. Frank Wells and Miss Wells of Boston are at the Belmont, Bar Harbor.

An engagement of much local interest is that recently announced of Miss Edith Walbridge, daughter of E. K. Walbridge, a wealthy native of Pittsburg, Kas., to Henry Sampson, Jr., of New York. Mr. Sampson is prominent not only in New York society, but is also well known here, and at Newport and Tuxedo. He graduated from Harvard in '99 and is a member of the Somerset club. He is also said he was a holder of a tier box at the Metropolitan and is a hunter of big game, having only recently returned from Africa.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Florence Emerson Wyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wyman of Quincy, to Luther Richard Hasson of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Solomon P. Stratton and Miss Katherine Stratton of Beacon street are at the Twin Peaks Summer home in Magnolia for the rest of the season. The Strattons have spent the early part of the Summer at Petersham.

The Gerald L. Hazards have returned from their trip to Europe and have gone to their country place in Peacedale.

FIREWORKS SHOW AT PARAGON PARK

As ofting climax to the war game week, Manager Dodge of Paragon Park has arranged an elaborate display of fireworks for the park to-night. The program will open with a salute of three aerial bombs, followed by a single illumination of the lagoon with tableaux fires on floating barges. Then will come the pyrotechnic display, pinnacle fountains, flying fish, fiery cataracts, fiery wheels, submarine torpedos and driving devils. The aerial display will include display rockets, battle chains, floating festoons, national screamers, eagle screamers and electric pedium. There will be a pillar of fire 100 feet high, a Merry Widow fan and other features.

Boston Boy Describes Great Race

H. L. Whitman (in front seat), winner of the New England 'round-the-world championship.

WHITMAN TELLS OF EXCITING EXPERIENCES ON HIS REMARKABLE TRIP.

With a day's rest, following their return from the Around the World Race, both H. L. Whitman, the New England 'round-the-world champion, who circled the globe in 42 days, 1 hour, and Benjamin Morris, the runner-up, are busy to-day recounting their experiences to their friends and interested callers. Both are the recipients of numerous letters and telegrams of congratulation upon their splendid accomplishment.

Both Whitman and Morris did great work during the race, and took advantage of every opportunity offered, but Morris had all the luck against him, particularly on the last lap of the race. Whitman had the luck with him on seven records to help him in his flight.

With Whitman aboard, the Empress of Japan, the pride of the Canadian Pacific, went over a day from the west-bound Pacific record. Returning, the Mauretania, the queen of the Atlantic, made a splendid hours from the best west-bound record. It was there two record-breaking performances of the ocean liners that enabled the Boston schoolboy to make the splendid showing that he did.

While Whitman holds the world's record for circling the globe, with Boston as the starting and finishing line, there were three rival teams, one from New York and the two Chicago teams, that have passed the Boston record, but they had a shorter distance to cover. The difference between New York and Boston, both Whitman and Morris suffering from this. Thus had Whitman started from New York and completed from Boston, he would have made the trip in equally as short time as he did the New York-New York in 42 days and 8 hours. Differences in connecting lines between New York and Chicago and Boston and Chicago made up the loss of time.

Bring Many Souvenirs.

In addition to gaining the New England world-girdling championship, Whitman also gained the English hockey championship among the west-bound world pilgrims who made the trip from the different cities where there are English newspapers. The boys learned this game while on the Empress of Japan, on one of the races, and with the assistance of a family of Whitman, who comes from a hockey district, took the lead in all the sports aboard ship.

Both Whitman and Morris came back loaded with souvenirs from abroad.

On board the Mauretania Whitman had distinguished company, among the passengers being Whitelaw Reid, W. R. Hearst, Colonel Sanger and Lord Strathcona. The boys were heroes wherever they went.

"The BOSTON AMERICAN afforded us a chance of a life time," declared Whitman, "and we shall never forget our experiences. Our accommodations and entertainment for our comfort were the best to be had. It was a race from beginning to the end, but we had plenty of opportunities to see things as we went along.

Saw Much on Trip.

"Railroad travel abroad is entirely different. Trains in the foreign countries all stop at stated intervals at stations, these stops at times running into hours, so that we had a chance to grab a half hour sight seeing here and an hour somewhere else. At Yokohama we had practically two days, a day at Vladivostock, a day at Moscow and half a day at London, so that really, with intelligent guides, we saw a good deal of each.

"To me Japan was the most wonderful country we visited. It was more progressive and picturesque, and there was on all sides an effort to be modern, although in strange ways.

"While crossing the Sea of Japan from Tsuruga to Vladivostok our captain tried to intercept the Japanese steamer that was carrying our Boston and Chicago rivals in the world race, but they purposely avoided us, the Japanese captain probably mistaking us for pirates or for a Russian warship, as we carried the Russian flag, the vessel being one of the Russian Volunteer fleet. The boys were very disappointed when we had a narrow escape from running on a Japanese island just outside Vladivostok, the only thing that saved us being a watchful lookout. At Irkutsk we met Mr. Sallinger, the third team of Boston American racers, and shook hands with them.

"We had heavy fogs to contend against both on the Pacific and the Atlantic. If it were not for the fogs we might have done better than we did in circling the globe.

"I want to thank the BOSTON AMERICAN both for myself and Dr. Noyes, my escort, for the great trip."

Chicago Boys Won.

The Chicago American schoolboy racers won the thrilling race for new records—eastward and westward—around the world in which the New York and BOSTON AMERICAN boys so gamely competed. By executing a special train, which they entered within an hour after leaving the Atlantic steamer at Quarantine, the Chicago team was able to win by a few hours over the New York rivals. The Boston team made equal time with the New Yorkers except for the distance between New York and Boston.

The Chicago team raced to the Chicago Evening American office at 9:28 o'clock through a lane of 5,000 cheering citizens, making the official record of 40 days 17 hours 53 minutes and 5 seconds.

The official time made by the New York boys was 41 days and 8 hours. A delay in Chicago upon their westward trip was responsible for the loss of several valuable hours.

The eastward record, established by the Chicago American team, is 11 days 1 hour 20 minutes and 12 seconds.

Tried for 36 Days' Mark.

The second eastward team of Boston American schoolboys, Leo and S. Sallinger, started from Boston upon a schedule which would have lowered the record to less than thirty-six days had they been successful in all connections. But their chances with all connections. But their chances were obliterated upon the first leg of the journey, when a demon fog held them for two hours off the coast of Plymouth, England, causing them to miss their connection with the trans-Siberian express, which runs but once each week from Moscow.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS REALTY MART

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 21. Conservative bankers believe that, as the market proceeds toward the higher levels into which it is destined to enter, reactions will grow very severe. Swings of ten points up and down are expected by the time trading reaches two million shares a day. Great concern is felt over the situation, but the Aldrich law has made it stronger in Wall Street inevitable and the bankers are bracing themselves for it.

$ $ $

Some of the more careful shorts, observing the character of the buying have covered their contracts, but it looks as if an obstinate bear account has been created by this its position, probably in the belief that the stocks bought by the large interests would again come upon the market to be sold on rallies. Such a belief existed as soon as conditions had been created by such a state that liquidation of heavy lines would be possible.

$ $ $

Perhaps the best rallying power displayed anywhere in the market is that possessed by New York Central. Much of the appreciation in the value of this stock, and brokers who have not allowed themselves to become excited by the developments during the speculative course of market events have their belief that something more than ordinary importance is the thing of more than ordinary importance and gaining the company's future was under a way.

Wabash preferred is being accumulated very quietly in anticipation of the election of E. H. Harriman as a director. Harriman has been connected to his election, but it was his connection with the road that will not mean that the Wabash will be linked with Pacific. The fiould absorbed by Union Pacific. The financial roads are to undergo a drastic overhauling and betterments in both their physical properties and their management.

American locomotive is a specialty that has been overdoing things in the stock market. It is now part of considerable money, and the forthcoming statement will not justify any dividend declaration as rumored.

$ $ $

U. S. Rubber attracted much attention because of its persistent advance in the face of denials by some directors of the forthcoming dividend. It is impossible to discover whether they are denying this dividend because none of it was given to the public too soon to suit their market plans or whether they do not want to pay it. It will be paid, however, or the name of the executive committeeman who vouched for the announcement will be printed in this column so that all may know who is responsible. There is no danger of the income being pruned, because the earnings are the company and the rubber commodity it has secured of the rubber trade lustily in with the best. It has always earned handsomely for years. The only manipulation going on in Rubber is in the hope of deceiving the public into the belief that the dividend is not due one or two directors may increase their lines of the stock.

The view published exclusively in this column that the figures of the Copper Producers Association are worthless as indicating the condition of the copper metal trade of some months ago by the National Conduit and Cable Company. In its copper paper sent out yesterday the statement is made that "too much reliance should not be placed on these figures, although the producers alleged that the deliveries stated by them represent consumption." Edward Cahan, one of the most able sagacity of the report made by the Producers' Association. Copper metal will remain heavy for some time.

The gross and net earnings for the month of June of the principal railroads of the United States are given in the list of expected, substantial gains in both these items. Summaries based on the earnings of 77 of the most important roads of the country show an increase in gross of $5,509,109, or 15.21 per cent., and in the net of $9,133,229, or 22.95 per cent. These figures indicate the increases that have been recorded in earnings in all of the preceding months of 1909, which were the natural result of a comparison with the greatly reduced earnings of the same period last year.

$ $ $

There has been no change in the money situation here during the past few days, except that the semi-liquidation on the Stock Exchange has relieved the money market of some of its former firmness and, coincidently has imparted a firmer tone to the foreign exchange market, by reason of Europe's selling here. There is no appreciable easing of rates here—notwithstanding the lessened demand, because the leading institutions are now entirely committed to the higher rates. They feel that they can count on this big addition in the money market lasting for the remainder of the year as there is not a western money to speak of that will be attracted here as in the previous demonstrations of this kind. The local banks are viewing the prospect with some satisfaction, as they need excessive rates, they expect to obtain more remunerative returns for their idle funds than has been possible for more than a year past.

HARRIMAN SCARE ENDS

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The scare in Wall Street over the illness of E. H. Harriman came to an end to-day, and as a result the decline in stocks was stopped.

After trading had begun a feeling developed that Mr. Harriman was well off the road to recovery and a rally in securities followed.

The leading issues advanced sharply. Union Pacific and Reading recovering two points. There was an entire absence of urgent liquidation. The buying of stocks came from the best quarters. Morgan houses bought a unlimited offerings of Steel and Reading.

Reading said that a large short interest had been built up by the reaction and that the market had been left in a much firmer condition than it was a week ago. The improvement continued until the close of business, final prices being the best in nearly every case.

PRICES FIRM; TONE IS GOOD

STATE STREET, Aug. 21.—Noon—There was little done in stocks this forenoon and the market was a typical Saturday midsummer one. Prices were firm and the tone was good. The buying, what there was of it, was reported better than the selling.

U. S. Smelting was the most active stock and considerable manipulation was noted in the orders, although the price variation was slight. Nevada Consolidated was slightly higher and North Lake was fairly active.

Amalgamated stiffened to above 185 and Steel common showed a hardening tendency. Lake Copper was very quiet, although steady, and there were a few firm buying orders in North Butte.

Curb trading was extremely light and without feature. Prices were generally steady. Eclipse Oil was freely offered for sale in large blocks.

REALTY MART FEELS LET-UP OF WEEK END

The sales in the realty market to-day showed a lull over the activity of the past few days. Investors are still looking out for good-sized dwelling houses and the records indicate the sale of several of this type.

The large four-story residence, No. 18 Hixsom street, West End, running through to Hancock place, assessed at $14,200, with $4,400 upon 1,600 feet of land, has been purchased by Louis Yanofsky from Samuel Lashkey.

Deeds have been exchanged between Louis Yanofsky and Samuel Lashkey for the leasehold of the four-story brick building, No. 42 Rose street, assessed at $17,200, on land of the estate of Mary Ann Rose.

Frederick S. Little has sold his dwelling, No. 52 Allen street, West Roxbury, assessed at $5,500, to Josh. M. Mosell et al, to Solomon N. Feiss et ux. The property has been occupied by Mr. Little for a term of years, and has a frontage of 50 feet on Allen street and a depth of 100 feet, containing 5,000 square feet.

Mary A. Hall has sold to Bernard Lonergan the three-story swell front brick house, No. 27 Rugby street, Roxbury, with a lot of land assessed at $8,500 for the same, No. 43 Telegraph street, corner Mount Pleasant avenue.

Frederick S. Little has conveyed to Bridget R. Lane the frame dwelling, No. 43 Telegraph street, corner Mount Pleasant avenue.

CINDERELLA SHOW DRAWS THOUSANDS

The Wonderland records show the great and comparative success of the past two seasons for the recent fine days and ascribe it largely to the tremendous drawing power of the great free Cinderella production in the open air daily at 3:30 and 8:30 p. m. Twenty executions are booked for next week, continuing the weekly offering of SUNDAY AMERICAN guests on Monday and Tuesday with eighty cents' worth of free tickets.

Refinement and security is a watchword at Wonderland, where the best disciplined force of attaches in the park world have charge of the great rides and inside shows. The Cinderella parade, given in the evening before the main free performance, is a delightful presentment, matching around the park with Prince Charming and Cinderella in their chariot surrounded by pages and fairies. The SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club will find in to-morrow's paper abundantly free tickets of admission to the park and the vaudeville and twelve half-fare tickets to the leading park rides and shows. Better order the paper to-day.

WORCESTER MAN IS LIFE SAVER

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 21.—Two persons were hurt, one perhaps fatally, and a large part of the business section of the city was destroyed by fire to-day in a fire which started in the burning market. Fred Swain were brought to a hospital by E. A. Carey of Worcester, Mass., also a passenger on the burning train. The steamer was destroyed. Carey, not before Joseph Cashier, the engineer, had proved himself a hero of the old-fashioned kind. Finding the boat ablaze, he quickly ordered her run ashore. Cashier put on full steam, and when she grounded in four feet of water stayed by the engine, to prevent an explosion, until the last passenger had been taken off. He was badly burned.

RED SOX TACKLE THE BROWNS IN FIRST OF SERIES

DOVES AND CUBS TO GIVE BARGAIN MATINEE TO-DAY

RED SOX OPEN WITH BROWNS IN FIRST GAME ON WESTERN CIRCUIT

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—All stiffened up from their long train ride lasting two nights and a day, the Boston Red Sox pulled into this city this morning at an early hour and hiked up to the Planters Hotel as fast as a bunch of taxis could move.

The Red Sox tackled the Browns this afternoon in the first game of their series. Manager Lake counts this series as being one of the "finishers" of the trip. He expects nothing worse than five wins a series, which will take three days. The even break at New York made the Red Sox boss auxious to get at McAleer's men and beat out three victories to make up.

Manager Lake didn't give it out as orders not to play cards on this trip, but he sort of hinted to the fellows that there wasn't to be much of the gambling done. That sort of stuff never got a club much when it was fighting like death for a pennant. However, the players just couldn't stand the long ride without shuffling the pasteboards to some extent. Several wads of the filthy stuff changed hands on the way here, but that's all forgotten by this time and the players are ready to beat the life out of the Brown Sox this afternoon.

When the St. Louis team played in Boston last they sprung a couple of surprises on the Red Legs and got as good as or even break. This gives some grounds to the hot talk that Manager McAleer is dishing out free of charge.

Jake Stahl, who caught a ball thrown by Hall in the last game in New York on his eye instead of in his mitt, is getting along in first-class style and had his lamps all done up in bandages when the team landed. Manager Lake says he will be ready for work in a couple of days at least.

RED SOX BEGIN SERIES WHICH WILL DECIDE PENNANT

To-day the Red Sox begin a Western campaign which will decide whether Boston is going to have a championship team. By September 4, when the team returns to the home grounds, the situation will be pretty well sized up so far as the Speed Boys are concerned.

The battles between the East and the West during the present series are all important. The athletics are making a great bid for the pennant, and it lies between Connie Mack's men and the Red Sox to check Detroit in pulling off another flag race.

If the Red Sox can hold their own during the present Western trip the prospects for winning the pennant could not be brighter, for the club finishes the season on the home field, and judging from what they did to the Westerners in the last home series it would be a romp to capture the hunting.

BROKE ULNA BONE?

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Young Evans quit at the end of the fifth round of his scheduled ten round bout with "Fighting" Kennedy at the Pouch A. A. in Harlem, claiming that he had broken his right arm. The bout was a fast one while it lasted, with Kennedy having a shade the better of it.

JOHNNY FRAYNE WINS FROM HYLAND IN TWENTY ROUNDS OF MIXED BOXING

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—Johnny Frayne won from Dick Hyland at the Coliseum after twenty rounds of mixed milling. It is just possible that Frayne might have placed a knockout on his man in any case a more decisive victory—to his credit if he had not made what "Spider" Kelly was pleased to term a "conservative fight," during the first half of the bout.

That, however, is something for Frayne to ponder over and he may file it away for reference at future engagements.

From the way the thing started it looked as if we were going to have twenty seasons of scrapping. It was Frayne's practice to let by a high left hook and then clinch the sturdy boy from Grass Valley.

It was not artistic clinching at that, but convulsive clinching, calculated to stop the wheels of pugilistic progress and minimize the opportunities for exchanging punches.

Hyland Lost Punch.

Hyland, who is essentially a close worker, made the best he could of things and managed to send in a short arm body poke occasionally.

In the outfighting Frayne had all the better of things. He used both straight lefts and full hooks, and pretty soon the corner of Dick's mouth was puffed.

Hyland seemed to have nothing in view, but his famous kidney punch, but in the main Johnny managed to blanket the Grass Valley boy before he could employ it.

Along about the fourth round Hyland seemed to have the best of the fight. He waited for the inevitable clinch and managed to yank one arm free after the other. He reeled solidly for the stomach and ribs with both gloves, and also met Johnny a few times with the kidney smash, a growing red patch on Frayne's left side attesting the severity of the blows.

There was very little variation in the first ten rounds. Frayne landed almost at will on Hyland's face before clinching and Dick plodded steadily at the short ribs whenever he could free a glove.

In the eleventh round Frayne began to fight more openly. He used a light uppercut to some purpose, in the twelfth Johnny threw discretion to the winds and gave Hyland the kind of a round that Dick is popularly supposed to hanker after.

The slugged across the ring and back again, and Frayne finished away ahead on general result. In addition to whipping in right uppercuts he drove straight rights against Dick's ear.

Dick got in a good many body hits with the right, but in the excitement of things Johnny did not seem to mind them, and when he went to his corner it was felt that the balance of the fight would be fast and furious by mutual consent.

Kelley Tips Frayne.

Frayne, although he lashed out in a snappy way with the right, at odd times employed clinching tactics again, and Dick, who was getting tired, retired and tugged and found more difficulty in working a free fist in the grappling matches.

Under "Spider" Kelley's instructions, Kelley was Frayne's principal handler, Frayne began to use a left rip in the fourteenth round. He caught Dick to the stomach every time he aped the punch.

He also had Dick with untimely right crosses, but in the main Johnny did not fight with the same force that his success so far would warrant him in doing.

The fifteenth round was very much in favor of Frayne, and in the sixteenth Dick brightened up considerably and sent in his kidney blow with considerable regularity. He also nailed Frayne with an overhand right on the jaw, and may be said to have had the better of the round.

From the seventeenth on, however, it was all Frayne, and the fighting was brave enough to suit the most fastidious.

The last round of all was Frayne seeing at will, and for all that Dick accomplished he might have been a concrete bound Percy Cove, the Seattle Shoe Lace, proved one thing in the bout with Mose Attell, to wit: that he is dead game, in other respects he is plain Percy Cove, and he is not likely to cause the bantam championship throng to totter.

GOLF GOSSIP
NEWS OF THE LINKS

How often the fact presents itself that the old players at golf are the toughest players to get by when they get going. Jim Kedian's performance at Essex Thursday was a great honor for him and for golf in general. It was the largest and most notable field that has played in Massachusetts this Summer or that has ever played at the Essex County Club in indeed praiseworthy golf. Some of the scores that Mr. Kedian defeated were Wilder's 78, Lockwood's 78, Gladin's 79, White's 80 and Anderson's 80's.

A tie was the result of the novelty tournament that was played at Maplewood Tuesday for the J. W. Scott prize, the two top men Legge and C. M. Phinney and C. W. Briggs, Jr. The rounds were to be played with the player deciding which club he would use on his next shot so he played first with his driver, the largest and most notable club that has played in Massachusetts this Summer or that has ever played at the Essex County Club in indeed praiseworthy golf. Some of the scores that Mr. Kedian defeated were Wilder's 78, Lockwood's 78, Gladin's 79, White's 80 and Anderson's 80's.

BOXING
BITS OF NEWS

Jimmy DeForest, the well-known fight manager, has confidence in the Moore brothers, Owen, Jessie, and has taken them under his wing.

* * *

The Denver fans believe that they have a wonder in Young Joe Rivers, Baker, a welterweight, whom they want to match up with Mike Gibbons.

* * *

As soon as the boxing clubs get active again there will be a difficult matter to find the proper talent. The old timer has been pretty well used up.

* * *

Looks like Hoke Hefner Rafael will get some big money before he returns East with his stable of fighters. Frankie Burns, the young welter from Ireland and the wise fellows pick Johnny to trim him. Burns is training hard and expects to win, thereby making the stronger. Hefner will now meet Cove for twenty in Philadelphia on the night of the Hyland-Frayne go. Leo Houck will put Butto on Labor Day for a $5,000 purse.

* * *

Joe Benstein and Benny Yeager have booked on Labor Day for a twenty rounder. Benstein broke with his old partner, Kid Graham.

* * *

Battling Nelson is going to burst into the light heavy class next week. Bat Shields, the young welter, is getting a turn for the hostilities, and if that is the case, Battling Nelson, we will say, will champ going a buck and wing with songs shortly.

* * *

Jimmy Coffroth has landed a renewal of his boxing bouts in Howard Baker, a welter, which will run for ten years, and the red-top promoter expects to have all the big athletes of his class, including Ad Wolgast, battling between men from four classes of boxers.

* * *

Jack Lansing, of Philadelphia, and Red O'Donnell, of Boston, are matched for fifteen rounds at the Quaker City, somewhere near Wissahickon in a few days. Lansing defeated O'Donnell in fifteen rounds in an 120 pounds ringside. At Donnell is a lightweight, who has been showing up strongly in his recent bouts here recently.

* * *

Mage give Willus Lewis the credit for beating him in their recent bout at Philadelphia. Tom Gunn says that Lewis was not in the ring with Mage, and that Mage was him, as he did Burke. PERHAPS.

* * *

Hugh McIntosh is certain that Ketchel will beat Jeffries and is willing to put up big money to back his Westerner the other day that Langford would beat Jeffries. Langford, by the way, is said to have had a deal of respect for the Canadian, and Hugh McIntosh is certain that Ketchel will beat Jeffries and is willing to put up big money to back his Westerner the other day that Langford would beat Jeffries. Dan McKetrick had heard so much about Willie Lewis's luck or speed that he began to believe it himself. If Lewis will only listen to me, said Dan, "and do as I tell him I will coach him right and have a wee bit of coaching like many others I have seen." Dan will get his chance to do what I tell you to do with Burke we go. If you fail I'll return the tickets to Ball. The tickets are still intact, and Lewis will soon get his ride to that dear land.

COLLINS TO RACE ROOT AND GALVIN

The greatest bike rider of the season, Eddie Collins, makes his appearance at the Revere track to-night and most of Lynn, his own town, will be on hand to see him race against Eddie Root and Jim Galvin in a 25-mile motor paced event.

Collins wanted to get Hugh MacLeay, but could not meet the latter's demands and agreed to take on a pair of opponents in Root and Galvin, the former two laps and Galvin four, or half a mile.

In the minds of many Collins has undertaken a bigger job than he imagined when he accepted Root as one of his rivals with a two lap start, as it was the blonde haired Montrose boy who beat Jimmy Moran when the Chelsea Milkman made the same mistake. Galvin, too, is to be considered, as he will make the most of his liberal handicap and make the pace hot from the getaway, which means that Collins has got his work cut out for him from the gun.

That Collins is up against a tough proposition is the opinion of the fans and he will have to go at a lightning gait from the outset to be able to pull down the big money in the distance of 25 miles.

MIDDIES ITCH FOR GRIDIRON

ANNAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—Preliminary plans for the coming football season are being perfected by the navy athletic authorities. Passed Midshipman Frank Slingluff, Jr., U. S. N., who played at centre on the team for three years, has been ordered to the Naval Academy to report for temporary duty. He will take charge of the men on September 1. Midshipmen Douglas, Dague, Long and Northcroft will assist in the coaching. Lieutenant Hartzell, U. S. N., will again have full charge of the squad.

$75,000 OFFER FOR BIG BOUT IN OKLAHOMA

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 21.—Joseph C. Miller, who owns the 101 ranch near Miles, Okla., in company with three brothers, while in Kalamazoo to-day made the largest cash offer for the Jeffries-Johnson fight that has yet been reported, offering $75,000 for the bout.

He prepared a certified check for $25,000 and stated his willingness to place it in any bank named by managers for the fighters to show his good faith in making the offer.

"I am also willing to place $75,000 in any bank they name if they desire that. We will build the auditorium that will be necessary, prepare all preliminary details and if the fight is stopped through any reason whatever the purse of $75,000 will go to the fighters," said Mr. Miller.

The Millers are millionaire cattlemen. Their ranch is forty miles from Oklahoma City.

NOW IRELAND COMES FORWARD WITH $75,000 OFFER

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 21.—W. W. Wilte of this city has been advised that a syndicate at Dublin, Ireland, will offer a purse of $75,000 for the Jeffries-Johnson fight to be held in the open air at some big undecided arena.

It is also stated that Harry Pollok of New York, now in London, has offered a $50,000 purse for the Moran-Driscoll fight to be decided before an American club, but he does not state what one.

THREE SONDER BOATS PICKED

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 21.—At last at the end of a week's strenuous racing but the Sonder boat team which will represent America against the Germans the last of this month been picked.

The three boats are the Wolf, Joyette and Ellen and they are considered the choice of the sixteen which competed in the elimination trials.

The Ellen was the first to be selected over the Joyette and Wolf were added yesterday.

The Ellen is one of the oldest of the American Sonder boats having been built in 1906 from designs by A. S. Boardman for her present owner. Up to last season the boat was not considered very fast, but Mr. Curtis has always kept her well up to improve her, and in 1908 she was the fastest of the class in light airs. She is entered from the Boston Yacht Club.

The Wolf is a Sharpe-Bond production as she was designed and built this Winter by W. Starling Burgess for Cleon Loring of the Eastern Yacht Club. In the early racing, as well as the elimination trials the Wolf proved to be the fastest of the Sonders in a breeze or blow and sea.

The Joyette is the first boat of the team and is owned by Commodore William H. Childs of the Beverly Yacht Club, son of Gravesend Bay, N. Y. In the trials the Joyette showed speed in all sorts of conditions and is especially good in a moderate chance in a ripple.

MAN WINS GOLF PRIZE IN SKIRTS

JEFFERSON, N. H., Aug. 21.—The event of the week at the Thompson House was a rousing golf match. Samuel Austin of Philadelphia won the prize for the most beautiful costume. He wore a long-tailed flowered coat, a derby hat, a duster, a spectator style and a large black straw hat with feather and silk with ribbons.

ENGLISH TEAM PICKED.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The selection committee of the English Lawn Tennis Association had nominated as the team that will go to America to play for the Davis challenge cup J. C. Parke, C. Dixon and C. Crawley, and raised their names to the American Lawn Tennis Association to-day.

BOOLES CANNED BY NAPS.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21.—Nelson Booles, a left-handed pitcher, who was brought here on trial from the Shreveport team of the Texas League three weeks ago, was released to-night to the Toledo team of the American Association. Cleveland failed to exercise its option on the player.

REDS SECURE STAR PITCHER

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21.—Clark Griffith, manager of the Reds, is certainly picking up new material. Forty-two men have been corralled for the Cincinnati club thus far and they are still working hard. With the drafting season but twelve days off, the Reds have the National League in the number of men on the roster. Lynch, of Newcastle, Pa., is the latest acquisition. He is a pitcher with a record of having pitched some twenty-three games with nineteen victories to his credit.

Keyes, of Logan, Ia., is another find, and there are three mysterious pitchers related whose names will not be given. It is rumored that a Chicago amateur is one of them.

DANNY BARRY IN WESTERN LEAGUE

A dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., says that Danny Barry of Boston has been signed to play first base on the Lincoln team of the Western League.

Barry was signed by the New York American near the close of last season and this Spring was turned over to Utica of the New York State League. He played there for several games, but the State League team did not come up to the price demanded for him and Barry was turned back to New York. He case went before the national commission and he still has a claim against New York.

He has played with the Boston tryouts this season, but he is said, several professional offers, and was with the Boston team in the Garry Hermann trophy tournament played in Chicago.

AUTO MEN TO WORK FOR BIG CUP RACE AGAIN

By J. C. KERRISON.

There is little doubt that not only the small cars, but also those of medium power and price, have found a most formidable companion in the new Maxwell twenty-two-horse power Model Q, which continues to clean up one hill-climbing event after another. Only a short time ago, in the annual hill climb held at Cheshire, under the auspices of the upper Westchester Automobile Club, the little car defeated the entire field of eleven American cars, which included six-cylinder competitors costing $3,000 and over.

A little later followed the climb of Giants Despair, with another victory for the Q. In the Algonquin hill climb the little twenty-two horsepower car defeated everything in its class, and repeated the performance in the Richard Springs hill climb by capturing first and second prizes. Altogether it seems as though the little car Bold might well look to its laurels.

The majority of automobilists do not realize to what extent of time and money the leading motor car manufacturers have gone, in order to secure the perfect automobile. H. S. Henshaw, the Eastern Thomas representative says:

"Our 1910 cars will have 240 square inches of braking surface, enabling the driver to meet any emergency. By a special designed manifold, which gives the least possible resistance, the gas from the carburetor when the motor is running at full speed, passes through at the rate of three-quarters of a mile a minute.

"High priced experts have made a lifelong study of these and while I do not say one would design a speedy boat, a high grade watch or other luxurious article. While thousands of popular-priced cars would be sold each year it is these details a purchaser gets in the high class machines against the low class."

JOHNSON IS BLUFFING ON JEFF FORFEIT

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—It's mighty hard to determine which of the two is indulging the most in the merry game of bluff, Jack Johnson or Jim Jeffries. In the stories sent out to the press, Johnson is quoted by a prominent Chicago fistic chronicler as saying: "Oh, that's all right, my five thousand is up with me. New York Evening Journal.

The question of forfeits had come up. Sam Berger stated, and rightly, that Jeffries' money was in the hands of a New Yorker. That money is up, for the writer saw it handed over—the one thousand dollar bills. We, in New York here, had supposed that Johnson had placed his money with a Chicago paper. When Johnson said that his $5,000 was up at the New York Journal office—if he really had such a thing—he was fooling nobody. He did just that, announced at once that he had it up for a certain number of days for Jeffries to cover. The stipulation that in case Jeffries cared not for the issue, the ten thousand was covered with the chance could have a chance at the title. Little Willie Britt walked in late one night and handed the writer five one thousand dollar bills.

That money was covered then and there and on the following day Johnson agreed to meet Ketchel and the forfeit which he posted was accepted as a side bet. It was my understanding that Jeffries' money was to be sent to Uncle Bill Naughton, sporting editor of the San Francisco Examiner. It was sent, and Naughton has it. It was further agreed that Naughton should pay over to the remaining boxer the entire amount in case either declared the match off.

Several occasions Johnson has announced that he has $5,000 posted here in New York. He hasn't. He won't. He can't be fought for, and it doesn't go for any Jeffries forfeit or Johnson forfeit either. It is to be battled for as a side bet in the contest of October 12.

Does Ketchel Really Mean to Fight Langford Here?

WONDER IF WILLUS BRITT IS KIDDING US?

By TAD.

Willus Britt and Stanley Ketchel have not started for New York, as was expected. Jimmy Johnson received a wire from Jim Coffroth yesterday, which stated that the pair were expected to leave Frisco Saturday or Sunday, and he added that he thought they meant business.

Wonder if Willus does mean business? That is about the fifteenth time that his man has been matched with the Boston tar baby, and every time something has kept the name of Ketchel in the papers, and Willus objects not to the ads. Ketchel, like all other wise fighters, knows that a little boosting now and then fattens up his end and packs Willus with him.

Billy Gibson, of the Fairmont Club, is going ahead with arrangements for the bout, and is certain that it will come off, but there are a lot of doubting Thomases whose great grandfathers were the first settlers in Missouri, and a whole lot of them are in this city now.

Willus wired last week that he would be here this week. Now we learn that he won't be here until next week. Maybe next week Willus will put it off again and say that he will be here in time to attend the writer five one thousand dollar bills.

That money was covered then and there and on the following day Johnson agreed to meet Ketchel and the forfeit which he posted was accepted as a side bet. It was my understanding that Jeffries' money was to be sent to Uncle Bill Naughton, sporting editor of the San Francisco Examiner. It was sent, and Naughton has it. It was further agreed that Naughton should pay over to the remaining boxer the entire amount in case either declared the match off.

Let's pull the other way, though. This will be one of those affairs that you'll talk of when the brush is two feet long and its grandchildren are at your feet asking for more.

"Now until," is the way they will put it.

* * *

Billy Madden, writing from his physical training farm at Cairo, N. Y., says:

"Dear Tad—I read with a smile the column printed about Sailor Burke. He told you that he was doped before the twelve fight. Now, Tad, don't be all of the fighters who are of gone. They blame it on some one else. I would have made Burke champion of the world had he been game or even near game. I have handled fifty-five fighters in my time and known the most he's five hundred of them before, and had to watch them like a hawk, so that they wouldn't run out on me or close feed them large doses of whisky to put false courage in them.

"They say that Burke showed great gameness. That's a joke. He's like a cur that's going to get clouted with a stone. He stands there and takes it because he doesn't know what to do. I have had a few fighters who never gave up an inch, no matter how badly he's punished. He wants to win. The class I had of the world champion in McGovern, Langford, George Dixon, John L. Sullivan, Jack Dempsey and others of that time Burke, as I handled him, and had him run out on dates with me. He got beat, strong boy, and it's too bad he don't learned a trade. A loser's end and a loser he is and a quitter. All boxers starting out should have no loser's end ahead them until they are thoroughly trod out and proven to be game. Yours respectfully,

"BILLY MADDEN."

They fought like dogs for three rounds, when all of a sudden the clever fellow, who had been stabbing the other with a sharp left, started to run and do like Jack O'Brien thing. He wouldn't go near the other fellow at all and they crowd started to howl at him. He'd feint, duck, clinch, walk away parried by the referee, run around until cornered, and then the other fellow got

Health and Optimism

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

TO the great army of working girls shut away from light and sun and fresh air all through the day I would offer a word of counsel, which will, if listened to and followed, bring at least a ray of help and a possibility of better health and increased vitality.

However gloomy and troubled the way looks to you, and however hopeless the future seems, keep your mind keyed up to an expectation of better things.

Thought is the most wonderful power on the earth to-day, and if you fully understood its influence there is nothing you might not achieve.

Keep an optimistic tendency of mind to what extent is possible for you.

Then sleep with your window open and stand in front of it at night and in the morning and take twenty deep breaths.

Get Plenty of Air

No matter if they cause you to cough and produce pain in your chest, keep practicing until those symptoms pass.

When you go out at lunch hour, or after work hours, expand your chest and entire abdominal region with full breaths of out-door air. And with each breath say to yourself that you are taking in the power to better your life; that you are breathing in health, success, cheerfulness and usefulness.

If this seems a foolish idea to you just stop and ask yourself if it is not a better use of time than worry, despondency and purposeless fretting over things you cannot change.

Masticate your food thoroughly, keep your chest well up; expect life to change for the better, and ask the invisible guides for courage, hope and power to do good. And see if things do not improve.

Look Up and Be Glad

Never for one moment settle down to the idea that your life must keep on in this monotonous grind.

Never believe that Justice is gone out of the world and that greed and cruelty and selfishness have taken the reins of power.

It may seem so, but apathetic or melancholy acceptance of such a thought will only delay the hour when better things must supersede the present conditions.

Think every day of your life that the world is on the way to Universal Brotherhood, and by your thoughts you will help that time to come.

One hundred years ago the masses of the world's toilers were not as well off as they are to-day. There was less prospect for the oppressed and the enslaved to rise into freedom.

Keep yourself alert, in as good health and spirits as you can, and believe a better day is near.

"It is a long lane which has no turning." There is room—light, air, sun—enough on earth for each human being to enjoy; and in time each child of God must claim what belongs to him.

Look up and be glad!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

FRIENDLY INTEREST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady seventeen years old, an orphan, and am considered very good looking.

Since leaving business college I have been employed by a very nice gentleman as stenographer and bookkeeper in his store at a salary of $10 a week. This week he informed me that in the future my salary should be $20 a week. He takes great interest in my work, and, in fact, he is always around my desk asking questions about my girl friends, etc. Do you think there is anything significant in his actions toward me, especially in view of the large increase in salary?

C. O'R.

HE probably finds you a good, steady worker and takes a friendly interest in your welfare. Employers do not, as a rule, fall in love with their employes, so do not let any foolish ideas enter your mind and interfere with your work. The raise in your salary is due to his appreciation of your faithfulness and industry.

'Gentlemen, Hush!'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I ONCE lived for some time in the South, right in the heart of the Black Belt of Alabama. In the house where I lived was an old colored mammy who was a great character. She had never married and had a large contempt for all members of the opposite sex save the two she had taken care of as babies.

"Mammy," I used to say, just to tease her, "how is it that you are an old maid; I should have thought that you would be just the girl to marry?"

"Gentlemen, hush!" she would invariably answer; "dey isn't a man on earth worth wastin' a good, capable woman on, and don' you feel a bit sorry for me, chile. I'm glad I'm an old maid."

She usually finished up the discussion with a long harangue to the point that all men were so conceited that they thought an unmarried woman an object of pity.

"Gentlemen, hush!" was her pet exclamation when aroused to any state of indignation.

It used to be a forlorn thing to be an old maid, but nowadays there are so many vocations open to woman that she is no longer the dependent, meek creature she was of yore.

Beginning to Know Power

Years ago, when the father of a family of daughters died and left them penniless they spent the little they had on doleful black garments and then sat down helplessly and looked to their relatives for support.

To-day there is a very different state of affairs. To begin with, woman is more sensible about mourning clothes than she used to be. She does not spend more than her circumstances warrant.

Instead of weeping and wailing and becoming a burden to some one else she puts her wits to work to find out in what way she can best support herself.

She is not driven to a loveless marriage simply for the sake of a home. There would have been fewer loveless marriages and more capable old maids through all the ages if woman had realized her abilities as a wage-earner and had not stood in mortal fear of a homeless old age.

To-day woman is just beginning to realize the glorious possibilities ahead of her.

First and best of all careers there is happy, congenial matrimony, but failing that there is still a happy, contented career as an independent woman.

Don't be afraid of being an old maid, unless you are one of the whining, helpless variety.

Learn to support yourself, to make a place for yourself in the busy world, and you will never be gloomy nor discontented.

In order to be a really happy old maid you must be an independent one, able to support yourself and to grant favors, rather than ask them.

Years ago, when a woman was left without means of support, the only avenues open to her were teaching and sewing.

To-day she has hundreds of opportunities and can take her place on an equality with a man, as far as self-support goes.

The old maid aunts and sisters are no longer guests on sufferance; they are much sought after, honored guests, and many a married woman looks with envy upon her care-free, independent old maid sister.

As for the men who are filled with pity for the maiden ladies, I can only agree with my friend, the old mammy, "Gentlemen, hush!"

Does the Average Wife Earn Her Living?

The Final Instalment of the Diary of a Day's Work the Average Housewife Must Do

By Dorothy Dix

"It's no easy job to help the children with their lessons"

TEN-THIRTY P. M.—One last entry before I go to bed, dear diary, though there is nothing special to record. One day is so much like another in a domestic woman's life that I would never know where I was if it wasn't for the calendar.

At 4 o'clock the children came back from school, and I gave them some bread and jam, as they always come home starved, no matter how much lunch they've had, and then I turned the house upside down hunting for a ball that Tommy had lost, and I showed Mary how to cut out a doll dress, and then punished them both for quarreling over a picture puzzle that Tommy asserted was his and Mary claimed was hers.

Then I got dinner, and because the children were still a little sore over their disagreement I made them a pudding that they especially liked, and that I call the "peace offering." After I had cleared away the dishes I got the baby to sleep, and then I spent the next hour helping Tommy with his arithmetic and Mary with her geography—which isn't any easy job, I can tell you, with the different manner in which they teach things in school nowadays from the way in which it was done when I went to school.

At last I got the youngsters through with their lessons and safely tucked into bed, and then I was free to see about my poor John.

He had come home with a bad cold, and a headache, and he had been growling around all the evening waiting for me to attend to him, for he's the biggest baby I've got, bless him.

"You'd better let me put you to bed," I said, "I'm afraid you are in for a wretched cold."

"Cold!" he cried, "it's double pneumonia. Don't tell me that anybody ever felt like I do with nothing but a measly little cold."

"Oh, well," I said, "whatever it is, a hot mustard foot bath and something warm to drink won't do you any harm."

"None of your old woman's remedies for me," he growled, but I went along and fixed him the hot bath and a sizzling lemonade, with a stick the size of a sausage in it, and he suffered me to administer them to him. First, though, I had to help him undress, for when he started to take off his collar and tie he fell back with a groan, and I flew to his assistance.

Of course I knew that he wasn't so sick that he wasn't perfectly able to do such things for himself, but he likes to be babied and feels hurt and neglected if I don't assume that he is dying when he's sick and treat him accordingly.

At length I got him into bed and covered up, and then he thought it would be a good thing to have a hot water bag at his feet, so I fixed that. Then he decided that he should have an ice pack on his head, and I went out in the kitchen and broke ice and fixed that. Then it occurred to him that he would like to be massaged as he had read that there was nothing so good for a cold as to get the circulation increased, so I rubbed him until my arms almost dropped off.

Then he suspicioned that the air in the room was not good and I put in a busy half hour, first hopping up and down, raising and lowering windows, first one way and then the other. Finally he happened to remember that he hadn't eaten much dinner and he imagined that he felt faint from hunger.

"Susie," he said in a hollow voice, "I must keep my strength up whatever happens, so I think I had better take something light and nourishing, a couple of poached eggs on toast, and a cup of tea, and a mutton chop, broiled, not too done, and if you have one in the house," So I cooked him up a nice little supper that he ate with an amazing relish for one as sick as he thought himself to be, and then he fell asleep, and I dropped down into the Morris chair to catch my breath and rest a little.

Before I could do it, however, there came a cry from Mary's room:

"Mar-Mar, I'm thirsty and want a drink. Please bring a glass of water."

"Mar-Mar, I've got the stomach ache. It hurts. Boo-hoo," came from Tommy's room, and I dosed him and quieted him and sat by him until he fell asleep again.

The noise had waked the baby, who set up a yell and for the next thirty minutes I did a Marathon race up and down the hall with the baby over my shoulders till I got it soothed and asleep again.

That ended my day's work, though of course I'll have to get up two or three times in the night to see that the children are covered, and to get them water if they are thirsty, and give the baby its milk.

Looking back over my day's work I can see that I have done nothing but little things, but I wonder if it isn't the faithful discharge of little duties that counts in life, and if I don't earn my own living, after all?

The world does not call me a self-supporting woman, but who earns her support with harder work than the wife and mother who cooks the food, and makes the clothes, and raises the children and nurses the sick, and keeps a family comfortable by the labor of her hands?

"John likes to be babied and thinks his slightest ailment the final one"

TAKING A HAND

On one occasion, at the conclusion of a railway journey, a famous comedian was seen to be going through a performance with one of his gloves; and, on closer examination, it appeared to the observers that he was stuffing it with cotton wool till it assumed the shape of a human hand. He then arranged it in front of his coat, so that it should appear to be one of his own, and he placed his railway ticket between the fingers of the dummy hand.

The train presently stopped, and the usual cry, "All tickets ready!" was heard.

The guard took the ticket—and the hand as well.

"The guard was a robust man," says the comedian, "but he staggered back in a faint—shuddering, and feebly calling for smelling salts."

The man who would just as soon have a poor coffee as a good one—

He doesn't want Seal Brand.

Seal Brand is for people who know good coffee, and insist on having it.

We have spent years in perfecting a coffee for the most exacting people, and such coffee-lovers owe Seal Brand a trial.

CHASE & SANBORN'S SEAL BRAND COFFEE

In 1 and 2 pound cans. 35 cents a pound. Never in bulk.

The Fool Killer's Off the Job

By Kennett Harris

HERE is the man who insists on advising you,
Hearty and hale as a person can be;
Here is the party that's bent on surprising you,
Healthy and whole, and just bubbling with glee;
Here is the black-slapper, seemingly flourishing;
Here's the health maniac, gassing of grub;
Preaching that par-boiled excelsior's nourishing—
Where has the fool-killer gone with is club?

Here is the gaudily-got-up collegian—
Student miscalled—who is prancing about
Whooping and yelling like any wild Fijian,
He is disgustingly ruddy and stout.

Here is the plunger on margin, quite vigorous;
Also the snob, scared to death of a snub,
Calling for action that's instant and rigorous—
Where has the fool-killer gone with his club?

Here is the man of deficient mentality,
Bursting to tell you the plot of the play;
Here is the friend who, disdaining formality,
Points out your faults in the friendliest way.
Scores of 'em—hundreds infest the community,
How to get rid of them? There is the rub.
That's why the, walk on our corns with impunity—
Where has the fool-killer gone with is club?

I REMOVED MY

FRECKLES

I will show you how to remove yours

FREE

For years I tried every known remedy without success. Also specialists and doctors said I would take them to the grave. Finally I discovered a simple, harmless preparation for them all. I will send you the prescription free if you will write for it. It took off my freckles and the freckles of thousands of others. It will remove yours. It will clear the worst complexion. Write me to-day. Address Mrs. N. C. White, P. O. Box 760, Dept. K, Buffalo, N. Y.

Human Eyes and Lungs Are Cheap, Dear Reader

And Anyhow, the Vanderbilts Are All Very Busy. Instead of Blaming Them, VOTE INTELLIGENTLY

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. S. H., of New York, a reader who doesn't care to have his full name printed, thinks that human life, eyes and lungs are held too cheaply, and says:

Write about the shameless manner in which the health of laborers who operate and work about the machines that mix stones and cement is disregarded. There is one machine working on the New York Central improvement. The men shake the cement out of the sacks into a revolving cylinder, to which water and stones are added. Much of this cement is constantly flying in clouds. These men certainly die rapidly of consumption, and their eyes suffer severely also. With a little extra outlay this cement dust could be confined to a covered device, and not only would human lives be safe, but at least 5 per cent. of loss in the cement be saved.

Our gentle reader is quite right—it IS wrong that the eyes and lungs of human beings should be filled with cement dust needlessly. Pretty nearly everybody knows that cement mixed with water hardens, and STAYS hard. Cement taken into the lungs, hour after hour, and day after day, must be dangerous to life in the long run—and not such a very LONG run, either.

It is also true that a little care and expenditure would save the eyes and lungs of the workmen; it might also, in fact, save the money of the builder, by preventing waste.

But our reader must remember that these are days of hurry—days when the little man who works must take what he can get, and work as he may; days when the "big man," who has inherited a railroad, or part of it, is very busy, and has little time to think about his workman, or that workman's eyes, lungs or general health.

The New York Central is managed by some gentlemen named Vanderbilt.

One of these gentlemen has just returned from Europe, covered with honor and glory, after having won prizes at the Horse Show over there. He used up a great deal of brain power and energy to decorate his horses' box stalls, trim their tails and smooth out their coats in such a fashion as to eclipse the English Horse Show gentlemen.

Another of the same family is very busy and very much in earnest on the French racetracks, trying to make some thin, well-bred horse run a mile faster than some other horse. When you are racing horses on a French track, and fussing over thin, little French jockeys, you can't bother with cement workers in America.

And then, every little while, one of these gentlemen needs a divorce, and gets it, and that takes time and trouble. You have to arrange for good lawyers, and you have to pick out a judge who realizes that a Vanderbilt divorce is different from another, and who keeps the details secret.

Our reader and others must not ask too much from the business men who own the corporations that hire the workmen.

He and others must get together and realize that in this busy world men must look out for themselves. The fey that are very prosperous look out for THEMSELVES most carefully; they never forget about that.

The great masses that are less prosperous but equally intelligent on the whole must look out for themselves, and keep at it.

They must learn to vote against dangerous employment—everything in this country is or CAN be regulated by the vote. When the ordinary man votes in a way that indicates that individuals are important, instead of always voting in a fashion to indicate the supremacy of money; when the voters decide that dangerous employment shall be illegal—that in all cases where money can save life the money shall be spent—the lives of the little people will have a better chance.

Meanwhile, do not blame the prosperous man. He takes things as they come. The individual whose money pays the workingmen described in this letter probably doesn't know the conditions under which they work. If he actually saw them, it is quite likely that he would give an order to change conditions, if it could be done.

It is time for those that have cement in their eyes and in their lungs, and for the other men who see them and live with them, to change things with their ballots.

Help the Floating Hospital!

The Boston Floating Hospital is a unique and splendid charity. It has saved the lives of thousands of Boston's future citizens. Already this year it has taken 11,252 sick children and their mothers from the crowded tenements of the West, North and South Ends of Boston out into the cool, life-giving breezes of the ocean.

Boston is proud of this floating hospital, the largest infants' hospital in the United States. As a captain of one of the liners which comes into Boston said: "I feel like taking off my hat when we pass the hospital on its way out to sea."

The hospital needs $10,000 to continue its work during the remainder of the Summer. The money should be quickly given, for the hospital deserves the hearty and generous support of the public. A little Dorchester girl gave a garden party and the pennies she received and gave to the hospital were as welcome and appreciated as much as the check of the millionaire. Contributions, large and small, are needed. No collectors are employed by the hospital. Send contributions NOW to George C. Lee, Jr., No. 44 State street, Boston.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

A TRANSFER COMPLAINT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Elevated has turnstile and subpassage in the north-bound entrance at Boylston street subway which allows one to pass under the tracks to the south-bound subway. When it is raining people going to south-bound cars from the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets find it convenient to go into the nearest north-bound subway, go through the turnstile and the sub-passage to the south-bound subway. By this means they are under shelter nearly all the way. But passengers coming through Boylston street on surface cars from the South Station with transfers to the south-bound subway cannot use the transfers at the north-bound entrance at Boylston street, even though they are going through to the south-bound subway. A nickel is good there, but not a transfer. Holders of south-bound transfers have, in case of rain, to hike along to the south-bound entrance, a long enough distance to get wet through. If the elevated means to allow people to use that turnstile and sub-passage from the north-bound to the south-bound subways at Boylston street, why doesn't it accept transfers at entrance?

TROLLEY-TRIPPER.

PRICE OF ICE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I see the price of ice is being boosted in Medford. What's the matter? Has the cool weather hurt business so that they are taking this way to get the money out of us before the season begins?

MEDFORD.

PRAISES THE AMERICAN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

For many months the only paper I bought and read was the AMERICAN, mainly for the progressive and sensible tone of its editorials. I also admire the Ella Wheeler Wilcox articles, and think the AMERICAN has the best sporting news section of all Boston papers.

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE —ON— THE HUMAN FACE

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE human face is the masterpiece of God. A woman's smile may have in it more sublimity than a sunset; more warmth than the sun's bright ray; more pathos than a battle-scarred landscape; more love than words can say.

The human face is the masterpiece of God.

The eyes reveal the soul, the mouth the flesh, the chin stands for purpose; the nose means will.

But over and behind all is that fleeting Something we call "expression." This Something is not set or fixed, it is fluid as the ether, changeful as the clouds that move in mysterious majesty across the surface of a Summer sky, subtle as the sob of rustling leaves—too faint at times for human ears—delicate as the ripples that play hide and seek over the bosom of a placid lake.

And yet men have caught expression and held it captive on a canvas.

On the walls of the Louvre hangs the Mona Lisa of Leonardo da Vinci. This picture has been for four hundred years an exasperation and an inspiration to every portrait painter who has put brush to palette. Well does Walter Pater call it "The Despair of Painters."

The artist was over fifty years of age when he began the work, and was four years in completing the task.

There is in the face all you can read into it, and nothing more. It gives you what you bring, and nothing else. It is as silent as the lips of Memnon, as voiceless as the Sphinx. It suggests to you every joy that you have ever felt, every triumph you have ever experienced.

This woman is beautiful, just as all life is beautiful when we are in health. She has no quarrel with the world she loves and she is loved again.

No vain longing fills her heart, no feverish unrest disturbs her dreams; for her no crouching fear haunts the passing hours. That ineffable smile which plays around her mouth says plainly that life is good.

And yet the circles about the eyes and the drooping lids hint of world-weariness and speak the message of Koheleth and say, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity."

La Giocondo is infinitely wise, for she has lived.

That supreme poise is only possible to one who knows.

All the experiences and emotions of manifold existence have etched and moulded that form and face until the body has become the perfect instrument of the soul. Like every piece of lutenso personality, this picture has power both to repel and attract.

To this woman nothing is either necessarily good or bad.

She has known strange woodland loves in far off aeons when the world was young. She is familiar with the nights and days of Cleopatra, for they were all here—the lavish luxury, the animalism of a soul on fire, the smoke of curious incenses that brought poppy-like peace, the satiety that sickens—all these were her portion; the sting of the asp yet lingers in her memory, and the faint scar from its fangs is upon her white breast, known and wondered at by Leonardo, who loved her.

Back of her stretches her life, a mysterious purple shadow. Do you not see the palaces turned to dust, the broken columns, the sunken treasures, the creeping mosses and the rank ooze of fretted waters that have undermined cities and turned kingdoms into desert seas?

The galleys of pagan Greece have swung wide for her on the unforgetting tide, for her soul dwelt in the body of Helen of Troy, and Pallas Athene has followed her ways and whispered to her from the secrets of the gods. Aye! not only was she Helen, but she was Leda, the mother of Helen. Then she was Saint Anne, mother of Mary; and next she was Mary, visited by an Angel in a dream, and followed by the Wise Men, who had seen the Star in the East. The centuries, that are but thoughts, found her a Vestal Virgin in pagan Rome, when brutes were kings and lust stalked rampant through the streets. She was the bride of Christ and her fair, frail body was flung to the wild beasts and torn limb from limb while the multitude feasted on the sight. True to the central impulse of her soul, the dark ages rightly called her Cecilia, and then Saint Cecilia, mother of sacred music, and later she ministered to the men at Melanta, the Nun of Tagnate; next as the daughter of William the Conqueror, the Sister of Charity who went through Italy, Spain and France teaching the women of the nunneries to sew, to weave, to embroider, to illuminate books and make beauty, truth and harmony manifest to human eyes.

And so this Lady of the Beautiful Hands stood to Leonardo as the embodiment of a perpetual life; moving in a constantly ascending scale, gathering wisdom, graciousness, love, even as he himself in this life met every experience half-way and counted it a joy, knowing that experience is the germ of power.

Life writes its history upon the face, so that all those who have had a like experience read and understand.

The human face is the masterpiece of God.

Nocturnc

By R. T. CHANDLER

DIM fades the pages of nature's scroll
And muffled is the time-drum's roll.
The mountains stand in silent rows
Vast, genuine statues of repose.

The moon in priestly calm hedight
Mounts to the pulpit of a night
And whispers of the evening breeze
Echo a sermon to the trees.

Each river in a slimy sheath
Hath cased its gleaming blade. With breath.
So faint that still its bosom seems
It crooms the story of its dreams.

The ancient pilgrims of the sky
In quietly legions wander by
With flickering tapers in their hands
To light them into mystic lands.

My heart like webs of gossamer wrought
Doth softly tremble to my thought.
And with fair spirits roaming free
Holds low, ecstatic colloquy.

Hushed is the strident speech of man,
Hushed is the war of tribe and clan;
From guarding pole to guarding pole
Stretches the kingdom of the soul.
